BITTER SCENES IN HOHENSCHILD JURY ROOM DESCRIBED

Foreman Says Some of Jurors, Convinced of Guilt, Would Not Discuss the Evidence.

'ONE WENT TO BED, REFUSING TO TALK'

"Things Have Been Made Unpleasant for Me," Declares Paul C. Ziener, Who Says He Favored Acquittal.

Scenes of bitterness in the jury room, in the first trial of H. H. Hohenschild, president of the defunct Night and Day Bank, last December, were related for the first time today by Paul C. Ziener, of 4307 South Grand boulevard, who was foreman of the jury.

Ziener was called as a witness in the hearing, being held before Circuit Judge Falkenhainer, upon Hohenschild's application for a change of venue in his second trial, on charges of assenting to the receipt of deposits in a failing institution. The jury in the first trial disagreed, standing 7 to 5 for conviction on the final ballot.

Says Prejudice Exists.

Ziener's testimony was intended to support Hohenschild's allegation that prejudice exists in St. Louis which will make it impossible for him to get a fair trial here. Ziener declared that his experience in the jury room, where the jurors remained over Sunday, and even more, his experience since the trial, convinced him that a widespread prejudice against Hohenschild exists. He knows this, he said, because the prejudice has come to extend to him in some cases.

"I was one of the five jurors who held out for acquittal," Ziener testified. "Some of the other seven would not discuss the details of the evidence in the jury room, and showed that they did not care what the evidence had been—they were convinced that Hohenschild was guilty, and that was all there was to it."

Says One Man Went to Bed.

"One man, when he learned that some of us were for acquittal, took off his clothes and went to bed, and refused to discuss the case with us. Those who were for acquittal stayed up until 3 a. m., arguing."

"Since the trial," Ziener continued, "it has been known that I favored acquittal, and things have been made very unpleasant for me. This has extended even to my family circle. Women have asked my wife, 'How can you live with a man who would act that way,' meaning my attitude in the Hohenschild case. Every time I have met an acquaintance, I have had to try the whole case over."

The present alleged defalcation by Donald W. Ross, State liquidation officer, from the Night and Day Bank's funds, were mentioned by two witnesses as having increased public prejudice against all persons connected with the bank.

Donnell Testifies.

Forrest C. Donnell, Senator Spencer's law partner, said that, since the Ross incident, he had heard persons declare that everyone involved in responsibility for the bank's losses ought to be lynched. Donnell, who lives in Webster Groves, said the matter was not discussed on suburban trains, and that from the expressions he had heard, he was convinced not only that Hohenschild could not get a fair trial in St. Louis, but that he could not be fairly tried here. He said that even men who would admit the good character of Hohenschild and other directors would declare that they ought to be punished for letting Cashier A. O. Meininger foot the bank's bills.

Depositor's Testimony.

R. T. Brownrigg, a lawyer, who was the first witness examined on the question of prejudice, said he and his wife had attended depositions in which he had heard persons declare that everyone involved in responsibility for the bank's losses ought to be lynched. Donnell, who lives in Webster Groves, said the matter was not discussed on suburban trains, and that from the expressions he had heard, he was convinced not only that Hohenschild could not get a fair trial in St. Louis, but that he could not be fairly tried here. He said that even men who would admit the good character of Hohenschild and other directors would declare that they ought to be punished for letting Cashier A. O. Meininger foot the bank's bills.

Don't you think," Judge Falkenhainer asked Brownrigg, "that out of the 45,000 men available for jury duty..."

TOOK $800,000 OF BANK'S
MONEY OVER 25 YEARS

Cashier of York, Pa., Institution, Confesses He Speculated in Mining Stocks and Sugar.

YORK, Pa., April 26.—In a confession given out by the authorities last night, Thomas B. Baird, cashier of the City Bank of York, who, with his assistant, William H. Boll, is in jail charged with embezzling approximately $1,000,000 of the bank's funds, said that his speculations had continued more than 25 years and that he was responsible for about $800,000 of the shortage. Speculations in fiduciat mining stocks and the sugar market were the principal causes of his downfall, he was quoted as having said.

Baird did not implicate the assistant cashier, but said that they had known of each other's dealings in the stock market for more than two years.

Boll declared that he had not speculated, but that the "high cost of living" had forced him to take the money.

MEXICAN GOVERNMENT TO CUT UP TERRAZAS ESTATE MAY 1

Farmers Will Colonize Small Tracts of the 8,000,000 Acres in Chihuahua.

JUAREZ, Mexico, April 26.—Subdivision of the estate of Gen. Luis Terrazas in the State of Chihuahua, which consists of nearly 8,000,000 acres, will be made May 1, according to information received at the Federal Court in Juarez. Carlos Peralta, Governor of Chihuahua, City, has been appointed by President Obregon to take charge of the subdivision of the land. The State Government two years ago, according to Federal records here, planned to expropriate the land and later sell it to Americans.

The Federal Government objected to Americans holding the estate, which is the largest in Mexico, and announced it would take the land. It announced it would pay to Gen. Terrazas $5,500,000 for the property, about one-tenth of what it was valued at by the General and his heirs. The estate will be colonized small tracts of the estate.

Votes Not to Make Contracts Under Joint Negotiation Amendment.

NEW YORK, April 26.—Members of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association voted today not to negotiate contracts with union printers or mailers in compliance with a new amendment to the constitution of the International Typographical Union, which provides that such contracts be made jointly and expire concurrently.

The publishers' refusal was expressed in a resolution which branded the joint-negotiating, concurrent-expiring terms of the I. T. U. amendment as "sympathetic-strike provisions."

TEXAN DANCES FOR 112 HOURS

San Antonio Man in Good Physical Condition at Conclusion.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., April 26.—A. C. Watson of San Antonio broke the world's nonstop dance record when he left the floor of a dance hall at 11:30 a. m., with 112 hours continuous dancing to his credit. He was allowed a three-minute rest every seven hours. He started in the contest to fill in as a partner and then decided to break the record. He was in good physical condition at the conclusion.

Earth Shock on East Coast of Sicily.

MESSINA, Italy, April 26.—An earthquake shock extending along the eastern coast of Sicily, accompanied by eruption of Mount Etna and Stromboli, caused a considerable panic among the population of the district yesterday. GAS, GASOLINE
AND EXPLOSION
MAKE A MYSTERY

Vienna Delicatessen Wrecked and Several Other Stores on De Baliviere Avenue Damaged Early Today.

ISADORE ROSSMAN
BLAMES ENEMIES

Firemen Report Finding Gas Stove With Burners Lighted and Uncorked Jugs Giving Gasoline Odor.

Three explosions that followed in rapid sequence at 1:05 a. m. today wrecked the one-story building of the Vienna Delicatessen and Lunchery, at 329 1/2 De Baliviere avenue, and damaged the Community Kitchen, next door on the south, and several other stores in the block. Windows were broken by concussion in other buildings and residents of the vicinity felt the shock of the blasts.

Isadore Rossman, 24 years old, of 4640 Newberry terrace, owner of the store in which the explosion occurred, was notified of the explosions and upon his arrival at the scene, about 3 o'clock, he was detained by the police pending investigation.

He said, after viewing the wreckage, that the damage was about $15,000 and that the loss was fully covered by insurance. He declared that he could not account for the explosion, except, perhaps, as having been caused by business enemies.

Gas Stove's Burners Lighted.

An alarm of fire was sounded and firemen reported that they found in the rear of Rossman's store a gas stove with the burners lighted and two uncorked jugs giving off an odor as of gasoline. Rossman said the stove was not lighted when he closed the store, about 12:15 a. m., and that there were no jugs in the building. He said there was no gasoline on the premises and that he had never used it or kept it for sale there.

The entire front of his store was blown into De Baliviere avenue and pastry and other contents littered the street. The rear wall was blown out and the rear part of the roof fell in. Glass in the front of the store was shattered. A 25-foot sheet metal sign, which was blown out of the Community Kitchen, next door, on the south, suffering most. Rossman's south wall was blown into the Community Kitchen, causing an estimated damage of $5000. The Community Kitchen was conducted by Mae R. Williams of 5870 De Giverville avenue.

The Vienna store is one of several one-story structures in the block between Waterman and De Giverville, on the west side. Next door, on the north, is an apartment building, the occupants of which were shaken by the blasts.

Smokestack Falls Across Bed.

On the south are the Community Kitchen and other one-story stores. The apartment at 5810 Waterman avenue, which is the rear of Rossman's store, and although bricks and debris were hurled against it by the explosion, no damage was done except that a 25-foot sheet metal smokestack fell through a window of a lower apartment across the bed of Aaron Smith, who said it narrowly missed falling upon him.

No one was injured by the explosion and no fire resulted. The firemen turned over the jugs smelling of gasoline to the police arson squad, members of which questioned Rossman.

A similar explosion Sept. 23 occurred in Sam's Confectionery, at Pershing and De Baliviere avenues, less than one block south of Rossman's place. Firemen found empty cans in Sam's place. Sam D'Amico, proprietor, estimated the damage at $17,000 and said it was covered by insurance.

INTERNATIONAL CROOK ESCAPES FROM PARIS PRISON IN PLANE

Man Known as Capt. Creith Was One of Chief Figures of "Bludger" Gang.

PARIS, April 26.—A man known to the police as Capt. Creith escaped from there by taking an airplane to Antwerp when they were rounding up an international gang of alleged thieves. Capt. Creith was one of the chief figures of the band led by "Bludger Bill" Warren, captured a few days ago with a quantity of cash in his automobile. Creith recently effected a bold coup in Rome and also operated in America. In 1920 he netted $200,000 from a carefully planned bank swindle.

Sugar Price Goes Still Higher.

NEW YORK, April 26.—Raw sugar advanced to another new high record today, 6 1/2 cents, cost and freight, equal to 8.54 cents paid on a sale of 10,000 bags of Cuban to a New Orleans refiner.

LEADERS OF FASCIST
ARE WOUNDED IN DUEL

Captain Forni So Badly Slashed With Cavalry Saber Affair Is Halted in Second Round.

ROME, April 26.—A duel with cavalry sabers was fought today by Deputy Giunta, secretary-general of the Grand Fascist Council, and Capt. Forni, one of the military leaders of the Fascist, resulting in the latter being so badly slashed that the attending doctors refused to permit the affair of honor to continue beyond the second round.

In the first round Deputy Giunta received a terrific blow in the abdomen, but as he managed partly to deflect his opponent's saber, he was struck with the flat of the weapon and escaped serious injury. In the second round both duelists were wounded. Capt. Forni in the face and right hand and Signor Giunta in the right arm.

Both combatants insisted upon going on with the bout, but Capt. Forni was bleeding so profusely the doctors declared him in no position to continue on equal terms with his opponent, and ordered the cessation of the duel.

The opponents refused to be reconciled, reserving the right to continue their quarrel, the nature of which was not made public.

DUKE OF YORK AND LADY ELISABETH
WED WITH POMP

Sun Shines as Bridal Couple Emerge From Abbey and Drive Through Crowded Streets.

COL. HARVEY STRIKING

Bride Wears White Ivory Moire Chiffon and Bridegroom Appears in Uniform of the Air Force.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, April 26.—Albert, Duke of York, was united in marriage with Lady Elisabeth Bowes-Lyon in solemn old Westminster Abbey at noon today with a pomp and panoply reminiscent of the spacious days of the mid-Victorian era and amid the tumultuous demonstrations of the vast throngs that gathered under threatening skies to witness the wedding pageant.

As the cortege entered the Abbey there was a slight drizzle of rain, but soon afterward the sun broke through the clouds and as the royal pair made their exit they were greeted with brilliant sunshine, recalling the old saying, "Happy is the bride whose wedding day is bright."

Romance Captured People's Hearts.

It was the second time in a little more than a year that the King and Queen of England gave one of their children in wedlock to a person outside the realm of royalty. While the marriage of the sovereigns' second son did not stir the popular imagination of the British Empire as did Princess Mary's wedding, the romance, which turned a simple Scottish girl into a royal Princess's bride and elevated her from a position of relative obscurity to the place of the fourth lady of the land, captured the hearts of the English people.

The fact that Lady Elisabeth's marriage to the Duke of York makes her eligible to wear the crown of the Empire, in event anything untoward befalls the Prince of Wales, imparted an additional note of interest and significance to the event.

Today's ceremony within the hallowed walls of the historic Abbey, which has witnessed the nuptials of kings and emperors of the nation for ages past, was both a great religious and social event, and was marked by a glittering exhibition of fashion and sumptuous jewels. The bride, a daughter of England's greatest luminaries in state, court, diplomacy and society, as well as an impressive assemblage of foreign Princes, Dukes, Duchesses and others of rank and title, were there, attired in finery and jeweled embellishments that represented the proverbial King's ransom.

A drizzle that had continued throughout the early hours of the morning gave way to clearing skies not long before the brilliant wedding cortege began its procession from Buckingham Palace to the Abbey, and cheered the waiting thousands with the hope that the sun would shine as it did on Princess Mary's wedding day a year ago.

The Archbishop of Canterbury, assisted by England's most distinguished prelates, solemnized the union. The Prince of Wales took a prominent part in the proceedings and doubtless learned much that will be turned to good account when he enters the marriage state himself. Lady Elisabeth, who was the bride, was acted as best man, but it was Wales who produced the ring at the critical moment.

The eight bridesmaids were chosen mainly from among the personal friends of the bride. They were dressed in immaculate ivory crepe chiffon, trimmed with Nottingham lace, and presented a fairytale picture.

Bride in Ivory Moire Chiffon.

Lady Elisabeth was attired in an exquisite gown of white ivory moire chiffon, embellished with bands of silver and pearl embroidery. A 15-foot train of ivory-colored net hung from her shoulders.

The Duke was dressed in the uniform of an officer of the Royal Air Force. King George wore the field uniform of a General, while Queen Mary's attire was a gown of blue velvet.

Seats were limited to those on intimate terms with the families of the bride and bridegroom, or whose official or social status entitled them to the distinction of witnessing the ceremony. George Harvey, the American Ambassador, was a striking figure in light velvet knee breeches, silk stockings and other court regalia, while Mrs. Harvey attracted wide attention in her gown of beige crepe with overdruss of black lace and mesh and vest of beige crepe, embellished in Oriental colors. She wore sable furs and a diamond necklace.

POLICE BAR PRIVATE WATCHERS OF AUTOS
WHO ACCEPT TIPS

Board Orders Their Licenses Revoked Because of Many Complaints.

Private watchmen who watch automobiles at picture shows, theaters, ball parks and other places, provided they are tipped for doing so, are going to be put out of business by the Board of Police Commissioners.

The Board yesterday, on account of many complaints about the conduct of the watchmen, ordered their licenses revoked. In order that none must be overlooked, Acting Chief Rundle has ordered a canvass of all watchmen, with their addresses and places of employment.

Complaints have been that the watchmen, although ostensibly employed by managements to look after patrons, gave attention only to automobiles whose owners tipped them. Others sometimes found their machines defaced or damaged. There are about 50 of these watchmen. They have the right to carry weapons.

WORLD SERIES CROWD OF 35,000
SEES BROWNS PLAY AT DETROIT

Fans Waited at Gates From Midnight to See Opening Game—New Press Box to Seat 400.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DETROIT, Mich., April 26.—World series color marked the baseball game here today between the St. Louis Browns and Detroit Tigers. It was the local opening of the American League championship season.

An estimated attendance of 35,000 included persons who lined up at the general admission gates of Navin Field last midnight. All reserved seats were sold days ago. With a new upper deck built on the grandstand since last year, the seating capacity of the park now is 28,000. At the 10 o'clock and standing space were filled today.

Another world series touch is a new press box to accommodate 400 persons. The box is far up on the top of the upper deck, about as high as the fifth stage of the Railway Exchange Building. It gives one the vertigo to look down, it being necessary to stretch far over to see the game. There will be no disputing of balls and strike decisions from the press.

Bands entertained the fans before the game.

8 INDICTMENTS RESULT OF "DIVIDEND" PAID IN LIQUOR

Attorney and Former Alderman Named in Federal Bills in Chicago Liquor Case.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 26.—Federal indictments naming seven men as well as the firm of Grommes & Ulrich, liquor dealers, which recently was dissolved by distribution of its $200,000 stock of liquors to the stockholders, were returned before District Judge Wilkerson today by the Federal grand jury.

The firm and the individuals, who included Charles A. Williams, the attorney who had charge of the legal details in connection with the liquidation of the firm; former Alderman R. J. Mulcahy, and five others, were charged with violation of the Federal prohibition law and with aiding and abetting in the illegal transportation of liquor.

Beside the corporation and former Judge Williams and Mulcahy, the other individuals named as participants in the case were: Charles A. Williams, Harry F. Tansey and Carl E. Behrens. Mulcahy also was among those charged with receiving a share of the liquor.

BALLOT BOXES OPENED AFTER DELIVERY TO BOARD OFFICE

Chairman Edwards, After Questioning Officials in Two Precincts, Says He Is Convinced That Honest Returns Were Made to the Board in These Cases.

PLANS TO CONDUCT
THOROUGH INQUIRY

Seals on Boxes Were Found Loosened and the Locks Tied With String—Had Been Placed in Vault at Office.

Chairman Edwards of the Board of Election Commissioners today said that examination of election officials who served in the Fourteenth and Sixteenth precincts of the Nineteenth Ward at the last November election convinced him that discrepancies in returns of those two precincts, disclosed by recounts, were caused by tampering with the ballot boxes after they were delivered to the Election Board by the precinct officials.

"I am convinced the officials of those precincts are honest men, and that they 'made honest returns,'" Chairman Edwards said. "They appear to be above the average in intelligence, and I do not believe it possible that mistakes made by them are the cause of the discrepancies. The changes must have been made after the precinct officials had finished their work, and we will make a thorough investigation to determine what occurred."

Poll Officials Questioned.

The election officials of the two Nineteenth Ward precincts, as well as watchers and challengers, policemen on duty at the polls and Deputy Election Commissioners assigned to those two precincts on election day, were closely questioned by members of the Election Board yesterday afternoon. The inquiry was conducted in the public hearing room of the Board of Public Service at city hall.

Discrepancies in those precincts were disclosed by recount of the ballots in the contest brought by Edward J. O'Hare, Democrat, against Claude W. Martin, and Benjamin Murnann, Republican, who were declared elected Justices of the Peace in the Fifth District.

In the Fourteenth Precinct the returns of the precinct officials have Murnann 89 votes, while he received only 70 1/2 the recount. In this precinct O'Hare was credited with 122 votes by precinct officials, but received 193 in the recount.

Sixteenth Precinct Figures.

In the Sixteenth Precinct the precinct officials gave Murnann 219 votes. He received 132 by the recount, a loss of 87. The same precinct gave O'Hare 55 votes on the returns of the precinct officials. The recount gave him 139, a gain of 84.

It is the ballot box of the Sixteenth Precinct on which the seal was discovered to be broken and the lock tied with a string when the box was taken from a vault in the city hall to be used in the Higgs-Daues contest for Judge of the St. Louis Court of Appeals.

Seals on the ballot boxes consist of a piece of white paper placed over the slot where ballots are deposited. This paper is then held in place by means of sealing wax, such as 12 strings were placed on the locks before the boxes were placed in the vault.

Republican politicians and attorneys representing Republicans who are defending the contents openly declared their belief that entrance to the vault was forced and the ballot boxes were opened. Democrats answer these charges by declaring that the discrepancies are due to mistakes of precinct officials. The Democrats say the seals on the ballot boxes became loosened because of excessive heat in the vault, which is on the first floor of the city hall, just above the engine room. They say the strings were placed on the locks before the boxes were placed in the vault.

Corroborate Each Other.

Members of the Election Board carefully questioned officials of the Nineteenth Ward precincts concerning methods employed in counting and tabulating returns. The witnesses corroborated each other in all material details. The board officials said they were convinced that the methods employed were proper and correct.

CLARKE ENDORSES HARDING'S PLAN TO JOIN WORLD COURT

Former Supreme Court Justice Says That Only Small Group of Senators Opposes Proposal.

HOPES HUGHES GOES AFTER 'MUCKRAKERS'

Speaker Assails Men in Public Life Capable of Imputing Base Motives to Great Friendly Nations.

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, April 26.—President Harding's proposal for the United States to become a member of the world court of justice was endorsed today by John H. Clarke, former justice of the Supreme Court. In an address before the City Club he declared the proposal should be adopted by the Senate by viva voce without debate.

Former Justice Clarke, who appeared as a representative of the League of Nations Nonpartisan Association, said that only a small group of Senators opposed the world court, some saying it had too much power, others that it had too little power and at least one saying it would be "the affray of the League of Nations."

"Only Two Objections,"
Only two objections, he said, are being made to participation in the court, one that, somehow, such participation would carry the nation into the League of Nations. As an experienced lawyer, he said he was sure the proposed reservations would prevent any relations with the league.

"I wish our Government could see its way clear to join wholeheartedly and without reservation in the support of this great court," he said, "but since the administration refuses to act without reservations, I hope they will be accepted by the Senate and that to this extent our country may be proved to have been sincere in its 35 years of professed desire for such a court, and thus keep its right with the civilized nations of the world."

The second objection, he continued, was the claim that Great Britain would have six votes in the election of judges of the court to one vote for the United States.

"This objection rests wholly upon the base, unworthy assumption that the representatives of these great friendly commonwealths would corruptly combine with the minor countries to corruptly elect corrupt judges to render corrupt decisions, for this is what the insinuation really means."

System of Election.
Even if that were true, he asserted, it would result either in the immediate destruction of the court or the plot would fail. But, he continued, the judges of the court are nominated by the representatives of the nations in the Hague arbitration tribunal, of which the United States has long been a member, and then are elected by the League of Nations.

He pointed out that the judges must have a clear majority in both the assembly of the league and the League of Nations. He said that the United States would have six votes and the United States, if a member, would have but one, and also in the league council, in which Great Britain would have only one vote and the United States, if a member, would have but one.

"It is a shame, a disgrace to us all," he continued, "that men can be found in our public life capable, even by indirect means, of imputing motives to six great, friendly nations, believing, as we do, that the people of our country favor, by a great majority, our going into the court. I hope Secretary Hughes will go after those muckrakers with bare knuckles in his speech tomorrow night. No man knows better how to deal with them than he does."

Nonpartisan Character.
The speaker asserted that as a proof of the nonpartisan character of the League of Nations Nonpartisan Association, for which he spoke, that 29 of the 30 living distinguished Republicans who were among the 51 who appeared to their fellow-voters in 1920 for the election of President Harding as "the surest way of carrying our country into some league or association of nations, to secure the peace of the world," are members of the association. He added that "it is an open secret that only official position prevents at least three more from joining us," and that "it is generally inferred that the three thus referred to are Secretary Hughes, Hoover and Chief Justice Taft."

In prefacing his address, former Justice Clarke reiterated his published statement last September that he did not resign from the Supreme Court for the purpose of becoming a candidate for public office and that any suggestion that he could be nominated for the presidency was futile and visionary. He asserted that he would not, under any circumstances, aspire to or accept the nomination for the presidency and sought no credit except for disinterested sincerity in behalf of the league.

Ward Is Shy One Alberman.
Residents of the Third Ward in Alton are petitioning the City Council to call an election to fill a vacancy. Mayor-elect John Elble resigned as Alberman to enter the Mayoralty race and since that Third Ward has had no one representative, Elble will take office Tuesday.

Duke of York and Lady Elisabeth Married in Westminster Abbey

black crinoline hat, trimmed with lace bows.
In all, nine Americans witnessed the ceremony. In addition to Mr. and Mrs. Harvey, the favored guests were seven of the American newspaper men in London who cast lots for the opportunity of writing eyewitness descriptions of the service and the gorgeous spectacle it afforded.

The faces of the sovereigns were radiant as the tall, erect figure of their son, with Wales on his left, walked to the altar, followed soon afterward by the bride, upon the arm of her father, the Earl of Strathmore. The strident, stately strains of "Lead Us, Heavenly Father, Lead Us," lent a note of beauty to the procession.

The Wedding Ceremony.
The revised and shortened exhortation, as approved in the New English prayer book, was pronounced by the dean of Westminster, and then the Archbishop asked the vital question: "Wilt thou?"

Turning to his bride, Albert said: "I take thee for better, for worse, for richer, for poorer, in sickness and in health; to love and to cherish until death us do part, according to the rites and ceremonies of the church, which I hereby pledge myself to do."

The prelate then received the bride from her father and she repeated the solemn words: "I take thee, Albert, Frederick Arthur George, to be my wedded husband, to have and to hold from this day forward; for better, for worse; for richer, for poorer, in sickness and in health; to love, to cherish and to obey, until death us do part."

The Archbishop then bestowed his blessing on the pair and a prayer was recited. This was followed by a second blessing and an address by the Archbishop.

While the Duke and his bride were signing the register in the chapel of Edward the Confessor, the choir sang, "Benedictus Let Us Love One Another," and as the royal couple departed, the inspiring cadences of Mendelssohn's "Wedding March" rang through the arched domes of the great abbey.

Emerging into the street the Duke and his bride were greeted by a peal of the abbey chimes. This was the signal for a deafening shout of approval from the multitude outside the abbey, craning their necks and standing on tiptoe to catch a glimpse of the couple, say them into their gorgeous carriage of plate glass and gold for the drive to Buckingham Palace.

Procession to the Palace.
Parliament Square was a sea of faces. Above the crowd rose St. George's massive bronze statue of Lincoln, the sombre figure of the great American casting a benignant expression over the tumultuous scene.

Eight thousand policemen, 500 mounted officers and detectives from Scotland Yard kept order along the mile-and-a-quarter route from the abbey to the palace. Outside the great religious shrine and all around Parliament Square were acres of wedding stands, for seats on which Londoners, provincials and Americans paid extravagant prices. Some of the occupants of these points of vantage were old men who had witnessed Queen Victoria's jubilee procession, the coronations of Edward and George, and the wedding of Princess Mary as well.

Every building in the neighborhood was festooned with flags and bunting, royal crests and countless banners and flags. The stars and stripes was not lacking. Scores of picturesque pylons of gold, blue and white, surmounted by a gilded crown, fringed the edge of the sidewalks.

Picturesque Street Scenes.
From the embankment, where London's homeless find a refuge each night in the shadow of the bridges and the protecting ledges of the river walls, came a host of beggars asking for coins with which to buy breakfast.

King Confers Dignity of Princess Upon His Son's Bride

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, April 26.—It is authoritatively announced that King George last night conferred upon Lady Elisabeth the dignity of Princess.

The King honored the Duke yesterday with the treasured order of the Thistle, which is held by only a score of other Britons, and he was appointed Senior Grand Warden of the United Grand Lodge of Freemasons.

The revised and shortened exhortation, as approved in the New English prayer book, was pronounced by the dean of Westminster, and then the Archbishop asked the vital question: "Wilt thou?"

Turning to his bride, Albert said: "I take thee for better, for worse, for richer, for poorer, in sickness and in health; to love and to cherish until death us do part, according to the rites and ceremonies of the church, which I hereby pledge myself to do."

The prelate then received the bride from her father and she repeated the solemn words: "I take thee, Albert, Frederick Arthur George, to be my wedded husband, to have and to hold from this day forward; for better, for worse; for richer, for poorer, in sickness and in health; to love, to cherish and to obey, until death us do part."

The Archbishop then bestowed his blessing on the pair and a prayer was recited. This was followed by a second blessing and an address by the Archbishop.

While the Duke and his bride were signing the register in the chapel of Edward the Confessor, the choir sang, "Benedictus Let Us Love One Another," and as the royal couple departed, the inspiring cadences of Mendelssohn's "Wedding March" rang through the arched domes of the great abbey.

Emerging into the street the Duke and his bride were greeted by a peal of the abbey chimes. This was the signal for a deafening shout of approval from the multitude outside the abbey, craning their necks and standing on tiptoe to catch a glimpse of the couple, say them into their gorgeous carriage of plate glass and gold for the drive to Buckingham Palace.

STATE SENATOR GIVES $1000 BOND ON THEFT CHARGE

Tillman W. Anderson of Commerce, Scott County, Waives Preliminary Hearing—Trial Set for June 18

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
JEFFERSON CITY, April 26.—State Senator Tillman W. Anderson, who was arrested yesterday at his home in Commerce, Scott County, on a warrant charging him with grand larceny in the theft of an adding machine from the State Capitol, appeared here this afternoon before Justice of the Peace John G. Leslie.

He waived preliminary hearing for a view of guilty, and gave $1000 bond. His trial was set for June 18.

His bondsman are Charles Keiser of the management of the Madison Hotel, Thomas Kierns, plumber, and Hugo Loeffler, merchant.

His Arrest a Political Move, Senator Anderson Said Here Today.
Senator Anderson passed through St. Louis this morning in the custody of a Cole County Deputy Sheriff, on his way to Jefferson City.

A similar warrant has been ordered against State Representative Allen D. Morrison of Green City, Sullivan County, charging him with the theft of two typewriters, the Attorney General announced yesterday, as the result of investigation by State officials of the disappearance of considerable State property at the close of the Legislature about March 24.

Both men are Democrats.
The arrest of Senator Anderson and issuing of the order for the arrest of Representative Morrison were exclusively related in the Final Edition of the Post-Dispatch yesterday.

Says Property Was Loaned to Him.
In a statement to a Post-Dispatch reporter on the train this morning, Senator Anderson declared the property had been loaned to him by a clerk in the office of the Commissioner of Labor Statistics, and charged with its return by the Senator.

He refused to give the name of the clerk to reporters, but Harry Woodruff, Commissioner of the Permanent Seat of Government, and Assistant Attorney General Henry Davis, who went to Commerce yesterday, said the clerk was Miss Susan Summers. Davis said he telegraphed to Jefferson City yesterday, from Cape Girardeau, to verify Senator Anderson's claim, and received a reply stating she denied loaning the property to the Senator.

Thrift Reported by Woman.
Woodruff said Miss Summers had reported to him, shortly after the theft, that she had loaned the adding machine and other property had been stolen. He said the adding machine had been in one of the rooms of the Commissioner of Labor Statistics used during the legislative session by Senator Anderson as an office.

Attorney General Barrett issued a statement yesterday afternoon that when investigations were in progress and that prosecution would follow in every case where sufficient evidence is obtained.

As exclusively related in the Post-Dispatch on April 4, a check of property in committee rooms and offices at the State Capitol by Commissioner Woodruff at the close of the Legislature disclosed the loss of considerable property. Among the articles listed as missing were the adding machine, seven typewriters, 21 desk lamps, shades, a mirror and a wooden chest. The report of the loss, seven desks, and four typewriters was accounted for. The chests were difficult to move, it was stated, and the shades were at the tops of windows in the House Chamber and in rooms accessible.

Two Typewriters Recovered.
Representative Davis today stated that efforts to reach Morrison at Green City had not been successful, up to this morning. He said Morrison had left Green City yesterday, and had not been heard from. He stated the two typewriters had been recovered and now are in Jefferson City.

The dictionary and stand seized yesterday by Senator Anderson of Missouri, who was arrested for the theft of a typewriter, was found in the possession of a man who had been arrested for the theft of a typewriter.

ARREST POLITICAL MOVE, HE ASSERTS

STOPS TRIAL AND SENDS ALL PARTICIPANTS HOME TO PRAY

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, April 26.—The appropriation made by Congress at the last session for elevating the guns of the American fleet will not be used for that purpose, Secretary Denby announced today, because of the unintended erroneous statements made by navy representatives in recommending the appropriation.

The Secretary intimated that the department would go before the next Congress with a new program in order that the record might be kept straight. He said this could have the approval of President Harding.

The following statement was issued by the Navy Department: "During the discussion at the last Congress of the proposal to appropriate $4,500,000 for elevating the guns of 12 battleships of the United States fleet, certain statements were made in regard to the disparity between the ranges of guns of the ships of the British fleet and those of the fleet of the United States. These statements were made in absolute good faith, but were shown by later reports from the Government of Great Britain to have been exaggerated. While the disparity does exist, it is not so great as was then supposed."

"Upon the representations of the Navy Department, Congress appropriated the sum asked for. In view of the discrepancies between the statements of the department and the actual conditions, the department has determined not to employ the money appropriated for the purpose of increasing the elevation of the guns of the American fleet until further directed to do so by Congress."

House of David Group Bridegrooms

HERE are two participants in the group marriage of 14 couples, paired by lot, arrested Saturday just before the inquiry began by State authorities at Benton Harbor, Mich. This week into alleged immoral practices in the colony, particularly by its leader, Benjamin Purnell, the immortal, otherwise called "King Benjamin." Left to right: Ray Mooney, a pitcher of the House of David baseball team, who is said to have been offered a job by the Chicago Cubs, and Robert Tucker, who is but a boy. Both were snatched while waiting to testify before the one-man grand jury. It is charged that the marriages were arranged suddenly as a shield for Purnell.

are held in the penitentiary. Carson was arrested on instructions from the Honduran Consul at Los Angeles, who called his name and description but did not reveal the charges against him. He has waived extradition, but both women refused to do so.

The women were greatly shocked by his arrest. But the women were gay and took the matter as a joke and bantered with the policemen. "Yes, I will waive extradition; I'm willing to go back," said Carson. "But I don't want those girls to be dragged through the mire."

The party arrived April 19 from Launceston, Salvador, in a private airplane launch. They made the trip from Amashala to Tegucigalpa on a motor truck. A trip of 80 miles over mountains and through marshy jungles.

The party carried three trunks and three suit cases. They went first to the American Hotel, but remained only two days, going thence to a rooming house. Carson settled all the bills, paying in gold. But before a week was out the funds evidently started to run low.

Benjamin Hill, 28 years old, pitcher for the House of David ball team, and Mrs. Lillian Hanford, 26, from the colony, were intercepted at Stevensville, a town 12 miles south of St. Joseph, early today by Sheriff Bridgman of Benton County as they were preparing to leave the county. They were brought back to St. Joseph today and promised to appear before the grand jury and tell what they know about the alleged colony. Judge Harry Dingman, presiding judge of the Michigan Circuit Court, is sitting as the one-man grand jury.

Phoebe Robertson, 17 years old, who was sent to jail last night on an order accusing her of "deliberately falsifying" her testimony before the grand jury, was recalled this morning and released from custody after an hour's grilling. Reports from the grand jury room said she answered the questions put to her.

Had Tickets for Chicago. Hill and his woman companion, it was learned, left the colony shortly before midnight with two trunks and suit cases bound for Chicago. They traveled to Stevensville in a closed automobile and there bought tickets for Chicago.

Sheriff Bridgman was notified of their plans by the station master at the town. Residents there told Sheriff Bridgman that four other members of the cult had passed through the town with baggage during the night.

Hill and Mrs. Hanford told Homer Quay, Assistant Attorney-General, the revelations in the present inquiry had decided them on quitting King Benjamin Purnell's religious sect. Hill, who was also leader of the cult's band, is well known in baseball and theatrical circles throughout the country. He has been in the colony 14 years. Mrs. Hanford, who left her husband behind when she packed her trunks and fled last night, has been a member of the House of David for 20 years. She was married in 1910, at the age of 17.

Commitment of Miss Robertson to jail last night, after it was reported her testimony had been contradicted in part by her intended husband, J. Millard Wilson, 24, precipitated a verbal clash between Judge Dingman and Judge H. T. Dewhurst, attorney member of the cult. Gen. Robertson, the girls' father, joined in the argument. Judge Dewhurst threatened to petition today for an injunction terminating the grand jury investigation. Robertson wanted to visit his daughter at the jail, but was refused permission. Later Judge Dewhurst apologized and Judge Dingman permitted him to talk to the girl in the presence of a member of the Attorney-General's staff.

The two other couples whose marriages were prevented yesterday, ordered to appear before the grand jury today, are Marietta Smith, 20, and Roy Martin, 30, and Ruby Glover, 22, and Virgil Smith, 40. Twenty-eight members of the cult were married last week in group weddings on the eve of the State's investigation.

ESTIMATE BOARD APPROVES $2.43 TAX RATE FOR 1933

Recommendation for 7-Cent Reduction in Levy Expected to Be Passed by Board of Aldermen.

St. Louis' tax rate for 1933 will be $2.43, a reduction of 7 cents from the rate for 1932, under recommendations decided upon today by the Board of Estimate and Apportionment. The municipal tax rate, fixed by the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, is $1.51, an increase of 2 cents over last year. The increase is to take care of interest and sinking fund on $3,000,000 of the recently authorized bond issue which it is proposed to sell this year.

Tax rate for school purposes, as fixed by the Board of Education, will be $1.19, a reduction of 6 cents. The State tax rate, fixed by the recent Legislature, will be 10 cents, a reduction of 3 cents over last year.

The $1.51 municipal tax rate is divided as follows: $1.19 for running expenses of the city government; 24 cents for interest and sinking funds; 4 cents for the Public Library; 2 cents for the Art Museum and 2 cents for the Zoo.

Taxes under the new rate will be payable in October, November and December. $22,759,045 in City Budget.

The municipal budget ordinance, appropriating $22,759,045 for all city expenditures during the fiscal year beginning April 1, was approved by the Board of Estimate and Apportionment today and sent to the Board of Aldermen, which is expected to pass it Saturday or Monday.

The budget bill was originally drafted by the Comptroller. It provides for appropriations $1,195,666 in excess of the total 1932 budget, which was $21,563,379. The increase results from inclusion in the present bill of items of $200,000 each for purchase of equipment for the sprinkling department and for increased garbage reduction facilities; a substantial increase for the Police Department because of the addition to the force of 100 men as authorized by the last Legislature; and other smaller construction and special items.

Before approving the budget the Board of Estimate and Apportionment considered a letter from the Bureau of Municipal Research requesting a reduction of $64,000 in the appropriation for municipal building power plants. The board found that the budget bill contains an appropriation of $132,800 for salaries of employees of such plants, which is $10,728 under the actual expense for salaries for the same purpose last year. The board decided to add $10,000, cut $7,228, which is justified at present. Mayor Kiel, a member of the board, directed that a letter be sent to the bureau, explaining the action of the board and making clear that its activities are not unwelcome to the city.

The budget bill provides for $2,587,815 for interest and sinking fund on the bonded debt of the city. This includes $1,107,769 for payment of interest and redemption of the old county bonds assumed by the city when it withdrew from St. Louis County in 1928.

There is also an appropriation of $2,750,000 for the public building and improvement bond debt, of which amount $163,290 is for interest and sinking fund for the $3,000,000 of the recently authorized bond issue. The first $2,000,000 of bonds will mature in 1928.

Appropriation for the Water Department aggregates $2,289,250, which includes $2,162,930 for operation and maintenance and $126,320 for new waterworks, buildings and pipe lines and other special purposes. The amount appropriated for running expenses of all other departments of the city government and for special construction work, erection of new buildings at institutions and additions, aggregates $17,531,850.

Other Appropriations. Among the larger appropriations carried in the bill are: Expenses of opening new streets, $100,000.

Expenses of the president of the Board of Public Service, $343,505. This is a reduction of $100,000 from the amount requested.

Lighting of streets, alleys, parks and public places, $590,000. Maintenance of Municipal Bridge, $22,760. Street Cleaning Department, $676,400.

Fire Department, $1,812,265. Police Department, $2,392,000. City Hospital, $466,910. Operation and maintenance of playgrounds, bath houses, etc., $960,920. Sprinkling of Streets, $350,000. Mayor's office, $38,130. Salaries and incidental expenses of the Board of Aldermen, $74,285.

PATROLMAN WITH TEMPERAMENT OUSTS HIMSELF FROM FORCE

James M. Asher, After Causing Woman's Arrest, Becomes Angry
And Tears Off His Own Shield.

Probationary Patrolman James M. Asher became angry last night and suspended himself from the police force. Officials agree with his decision that he doesn't fit in the force. Lieut. Nicholas Mansfield, in charge of the Carondelet District, reported that Asher, in tearing off his own shield, became so angry that he swore at the Lieutenant and threatened to shoot him. A policeman who was present and helped disarm Asher, corroborates this. Asher admits all the other details of the affair.

Asher called the patrol wagon at 10 p. m. and took the patrol wagon to his home, saying he wanted her locked up for investigation. That his Sergeant had told him to watch her house. Pressed for a further explanation, he said he saw a man take a bundle in the house, then disappear. He searched the house, without a warrant, but by the time he had searched the house, he knew of nothing against the woman's character. Asked what her offense was, he swore and said the Lieutenant was no policeman, that he was a hoodlum and that he was a commander.

The woman was released forthwith. Police physicians said Asher was not so temperamental. He was appointed to the force Jan. 9, 1930; resigned Aug. 5 last under charges of insubordination and was reappointed Nov. 24 last.

Policeman Stain, Deputy Shot. SCOTT'S BLUFF, Neb., April 26.—Albert Peterson, a policeman, was shot and killed, and Guy Carlson, deputy sheriff, was seriously wounded last night at Mitchell, Neb., near here, by Harold Randall, whose arrest was sought on a charge of bootlegging.

$433,000, of which $34,000 is chargeable to the new bond issue. This is for services of experts in preparing plans, etc., and does not include actual work on streets. Elections and registrations, $93,000. Expenses of various courts, $708,569.

Office of the president of the Board of Public Service, $343,505. This is a reduction of $100,000 from the amount requested.

Lighting of streets, alleys, parks and public places, $590,000. Maintenance of Municipal Bridge, $22,760. Street Cleaning Department, $676,400.

Fire Department, $1,812,265. Police Department, $2,392,000. City Hospital, $466,910. Operation and maintenance of playgrounds, bath houses, etc., $960,920.

Sprinkling of Streets, $350,000. Mayor's office, $38,130. Salaries and incidental expenses of the Board of Aldermen, $74,285.

Increases for 45 Classes of Mechanics Provided in Bill. Only 45 classes of mechanics obtain increases in pay from the city under the standardization bill introduced in the Board of Aldermen today. No change in monthly rate of pay is provided.

The fire department includes members of the Fire Department, who were seeking increases totaling $300,000 a year; physicians in the employ of the Health Department, for whom the St. Louis Medical Society recommended increases totaling $45,000 a year; and architects and engineers, who asked for increases also.

However, the firemen are carrying their fight to the board and caused the introduction of a separate bill by Alderman Kraenemann for increases totaling $308,000 annually. In it the pay of captains is increased from $170 to $190 a month; that of engineers from $150 to $175; lieutenants, from $150 to $195; Class A privates, first six months, from $115 to $140, after six months from $140 to $165; Class B privates, from $115 to $140, and stable hostlers from $109 to $125.

The letter written by the Bureau of Municipal Research, declaring that the payroll of the city power plants can be reduced $64,000 a year, was referred to the Committee on Ways and Means, to which the budget bill will be referred after a second reading tomorrow.

The Board of Estimate and Apportionment today approved the recommendation of the Board of Public Service for the expenditure this year of $4,000,000 of bond issue money, as outlined in Tuesday's Post-Dispatch. The suggestion now will go to the Citizens' Supervisory Committee.

ALLEGES CONSPIRACY IN SUIT AGAINST RUTH

Prisoner in Tombs Offers to Show There Is No Basis for Girl's Complaint.

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, April 26.—Supreme Court Justice Newburger today signed an order for examination tomorrow of Robert McChesney, now in the Tombs, who has been hailed as an important witness for Babe Ruth in the $50,000 action brought against the ball player last March by Delores Dixon. The girl, suing through Barbara V. Escoe, her guardian ad litem, charges that as the result of an assault made on her by Ruth she is an expectant mother. Ruth, through his counsel, has denied ever having seen the plaintiff.

In an affidavit submitted to the court, said that McChesney had stated he had resided for some time in the Riverside drive apartment occupied by Mrs. Escoe and her husband and "while in said apartment became very familiar with the actions of the plaintiff."

The affidavit continued: "The said Robert McChesney has informed your deponent that he is able to give testimony which will prove to the court that there is no basis in fact for the grave accusations which have been made by the plaintiff and the said Robert McChesney has informed your deponent that he is able to show by his testimony that the within action is the result of a conspiracy."

CONFESSES $40,000 SHORTAGE CONCEALED FOR TWO YEARS

Banker at Elgin, Kan., Goes to State Capital Voluntarily and Tells of His Predicament.

TOPEKA, Kan., April 26.—Although J. R. Burns, cashier of the Elgin State Bank of Elgin, Kan., near the Oklahoma line in Chautauqua County, had successfully concealed from the State Bank Examiners for the last two years, a defalcation of $40,000, he decided to make a complete confession of his misdeeds. He came to Topeka yesterday, laid his story before Carl Peterson, State Bank Commissioner, and declared his willingness to return home and enter a plea of guilty of embezzlement and do what he could to make up the shortage.

Peterson ordered the bank closed and assigned a Deputy Bank Examiner to accompany Burns back to Caney, the county seat, where Burns will be arraigned. Examiners at once will go over the bank's books. Whether there are losses in addition to the $40,000 will not be known until the examination is completed.

Burns said that for two years he had been endeavoring to refund the money, but failed. The money, he said, was used as a personal loan to a contractor who was unable to repay. Burns chose to make the revelation today, he said, because a State Bank Examiner was due to arrive at the bank Friday. Four previous examinations failed to uncover the shortage. The bank has deposits of $200,000, is capitalized at $25,000 and has a surplus of $5000.

The Chautauqua State Bank of Chautauqua was ordered closed today by the State Bank Commissioner. Burns is president of the Chautauqua bank.

BURGLARS GET $966 AT CREAMERY CONCERN

Safe in Office of Blue Valley
Co., 2722 Pine Street, Broken Open.

Burglars who entered the offices of the Blue Valley Creamery Co., 2722 Pine street, some time last night broke open a safe from which they took $966.70 and ransacked a filing cabinet, Claude Sellers, manager, reported to the police today. Entrance apparently had been gained through a ventilator opening in the roof of the one-story building. The intruders left behind a crow bar and many finger prints on a safe and file case. These were photographed.

ROSS' FRIENDS STILL TRYING TO OBTAIN $25,000 BOND FOR HIM

Former Bank Liquidation Officer
Has Spent Two Nights in Jail
Since His Arrest.

Friends of Donald W. Ross, former Deputy State Finance Commissioner in charge of liquidation of the defunct Night and Day Bank, and more lately president of the West Side State Bank of Kansas City, are still trying to make up a $25,000 bond for his release from the City Jail, where he has now spent two nights since his arrest on an indictment charging him with embezzlement of $26,250. The sum named is part of a shortage of $70,000 or more in his liquidation account with the Night and Day Bank.

Ross today refused to comment on his case in any way, or to say how soon he expected release on bond. He was still confined in the temporary quarters of the jail, in a second floor corridor, pending his installation in the regular third floor quarters. His only exercise or recreation is pacing the corridor. If he remains in jail long enough to be placed on the third floor he will have more scope for exercise there.

HARBOR ORDERS RADIO LABOR TO BECOME CITIZENS OR QUIT

Some Workers in Corporation Headed by Ex-Army Leader Said to Resent Invasion of Rights.

NEW YORK, April 26.—A stir has been caused among unnaturalized employees of the Radio Corporation of America by an order by J. G. Harbord, president of the company and formerly Major-General in the A. E.
F., that they must be naturalized.
Some of those affected resent what they term an invasion of their rights.
Gen. Harbord said yesterday he had heard of no complaints and supposed the order would be obeyed willingly.
"It is only reasonable," he said,
"that those who are enjoying the privileges and advantages of inhabitants of this country should assume the responsibilities of citizenship. Our charter requires that all executive officers be American citizens and we are extending this requirement to include all our organizations. Any who do not want to be naturalized are at liberty to leave."

The Radio Corporation was organized as the American Marconi Corporation. Since being taken over by American capital, naturalization has been urged until now, out of more than 1100 employees, only 76 are allies, mostly Canadians.

such fine qualities, exquisite styles, extraordinary values and marvelous Dresses as we have assembled for tomorrow's offering. An outstanding feature of the Record Dress Sale this season is the price, which will be $15—instead of $25, as prevailed, with one exception, in all previous Record Dress events.

Incomparable Service

A Li. selling forces and wrapping facilities will be mobilized in the Dress Section Friday. Our entire efforts will be concentrated on this sale at $15.00, in order that you will be served properly, efficiently and promptly.

Thousands of Dresses have been provided for this tremendous sale, and with the price considerably lower than last year, we anticipate a new record, far in excess of that already established. Every garment is brand-new and purchased especially for the Record Sale.

Two entrances — four elevators for your convenience. Use the ones that serve you best.

Dresses Are Worth Two, Three and Even Four Times the Sale Price!

Smart Extra-Size Dresses

Formerly $65 and $75—Friday and Saturday

$39.75 and $49.75

THIS is a Dress event that will stimulate the interest of women who require extra size frocks, for there is a most attractive blending of style, comfort and values here. Lovely Canton crepes, with allover embroidered jacquette blouse, black and white foulard crepes and combinations, trimmed in the popular pleatings, and silk eponges with long slenderizing lines with fagoting inserts. The eponges come in oyster white, dappel and jade. Canton crepes are mostly all black but the new brown shade appears in an attractive model, with bead trimming.

We would recommend early buying for choicest selections.

MANAGER OF MINE ROUTED SECOND TIME

Strikers Also Send 40 Deputy Constables Scurrying From Camp in Quebec.

By the Associated Press.
THETFORD MINES, Quebec, April 26.—A crowd of 1500 miners who attacked the offices of the Asbestos Corporation last night succeeded in driving Col. C. H. McNutt, assistant general manager, out of town for the second time and in sending 40 special constables scurrying back to Sherbrooke.
The constables had been sent to the mines from Montreal by a private detective agency after Col. McNutt's first election from the town. The Colonel returned with them.
Soon after they had entrenched themselves in the company's offices a mob attacked them with stones and fire hoses, forcing them to flee after blank shots fired over the heads of the miners had failed to check the charge.
About 9000 men are employed in the industry. About 25 per cent are reported to be on strike.

President of Corporation Appeals to Attorney-General for Protection.
By the Associated Press.
MONTREAL, April 26.—W. G. Ross, president of the Asbestos Corporation of Canada, today appealed to Attorney-General Taschereau for protection, asserting that strikers at the company's pits in Thetford mines, after attacking the offices last night and driving 40 Constables out of town, were threatening to dynamite public buildings and mine structures.
Ross, who described conditions at the mines as worse than those in Russia, asserted the strikers had raided all the hardware stores in the district and seized firearms and dynamite. He said the situation had become so serious that the company entertained fear for lives and property.

Ross said that the trouble grew out of a demand by Col. C. H. McNutt, assistant general manager, that the men continue work until the 7:30 whistle blew. Another grievance was the laying off of several miners. The first indication of dissatisfaction on the part of the miners was the enforced departure for Sherbrooke last Monday of Col. McNutt and Supt. Anderson of the Dooney Cooke Construction Co. McNutt returned with 40 special Constables.
At the organization meeting of the Board of Supervisors of Jersey County, Ill., yesterday, Dixon County, Ill., was elected chairman.

F. B. NOYES RE-ELECTED HEAD OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Clark Howell Pays Tribute to President of Association Who Has Served More Than 20 Years.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
NEW YORK, April 26.—Frank B. Noyes of the Washington Star was re-elected president of the Associated Press at a meeting of the new board of directors yesterday. Noyes has served more than 20 years, and in nominating him, Clark Howell of the Atlanta Constitution paid him tribute for the services he has rendered the news association.
"More than to any other living man is due to him the greatness and glory of the greatest news organization on earth," Howell said.

The other officers elected were: Florence D. White, New York Evening World, first vice president; George B. Dealey, Dallas (Tex.) News, second vice president; Melville E. Stone, secretary and counsel; Frederick Roy Martin, assistant secretary and general manager, and J. R. Youatt, treasurer.

You Who Enjoy the Early Morning Out of Doors

Be it golf, tennis or just a hike in the sparkling air of early day, will find a bite of tasty breakfast, before you go, spells added pleasure and health for you.
Not much, of course—just eggs and bacon or a chop, and toast and coffee—but you hate to waste the precious moments messing around the kitchen to get them. With these convenient Electrical Appliances you needn't waste a minute—they will do the job while you dress.

The Electric Toaster Stove

Break a couple of eggs over a few slices of bacon or a chop, turn the switch, and you'll have just the right dish in a jiffy. Make toast on top at the same time, and forget there is a kitchen in the house.

THREE OTHER JUDGES DIFFER WITH WOODSON

Permit Filing of Briefs by Kansas City Lawyers Attacking
Chief Justice's Opinion.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent
of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 25.—The other three judges of Division No. 2 of the State Supreme Court have disagreed with Chief Justice A. M. Woodson in his dispute with 25 Kansas City attorneys in which Judge Woodson wants the lawyers cited for contempt.

The division, by a three-to-one vote, has allowed the 25 to file briefs attacking an opinion by the Chief Justice. As told in the Post-Dispatch yesterday, the Kansas City attorneys, among the most prominent members of the bar of that city, have filed a motion in Division 1, declaring that an opinion by Judge Woodson handed down last December was "fundamentally wrong in principle."

The Chief Justice countered by declaring in a formal public statement that the language of the motion constituted contempt of court for which each signer could be cited. Judges Graves, James T. Blair and Haglund, however, differed from the Chief Justice and voted to allow the petitioners to file briefs as amici curiae, or friends of the court.

The controversy arose in a suit in which the Gary Realty Co. of Kansas City sought to quiet title of the Empress Theatre of that city. Judge Woodson reversed findings of a Justice of the Peace, Circuit Court and the Kansas City Court of Appeals on the ground that no proper summons had ever been served on the defendant. He held that the appearance of the defendant did not constitute a waiver of service or act as a cure of defective service. This case was in the court in June.

The present motion, attacking that opinion, is filed in a companion case, pending in Division No. 1, which is a suit on the appeal bond in the other case. One side is relying on the Woodson opinion, the other attacking it in the appeal bond suit.

Act of the division in allowing the filing of the briefs of the friends of the court is expected to put an end to the controversy, as it indicates that at least three of the other judges do not regard the declarations in the motion as improper.

DANN'S DEATH DUE TO NATURAL CAUSES, NOT TO WEDDING LIQUOR

Chronic Nephritis Given as Cause in Verdict Returned at Inquest.

A verdict of death from natural causes was returned at the inquest today into the death of John Dann, 42 years old, 1124 South Newstead avenue at the city hospital yesterday morning.

Dann became ill after drinking some moonshine whiskey at the home of John Senko, 1118 South Newstead avenue, and when he was received at the hospital his case was diagnosed as alcoholic poisoning, but the autopsy showed that death was due to chronic nephritis with no indication that the fatal termination was hastened by the whiskey. Others who drank the liquor at a wedding party testified that it did not hurt them.

OLDER BROTHER MUST HANG

Death Penalty of Younger Commuted to a Life Term.

By the Associated Press.
ATLANTA, Ga., April 25.—George Baker, convicted of the murder of Joseph W. Morton, Walker County deputy sheriff, on March 18, 1922, and sentenced to death, lost his fight yesterday for clemency and will be hanged tomorrow, April 27. Gov. Hardwick refusing to grant a commutation to life imprisonment. In the case of Ralph Baker, 17 years old, younger brother of George, who was also sentenced to death for the same crime, the Governor commuted the sentence to a life term.

Throughout the Evening Keep that vision alive!

The most charming coiffures are not always easily attained! Careful study and much care are often necessary to get just the right effect for your particular type of beauty. Yet, to be distinctive, you must find the coiffure which best becomes you.

When You Find It— Keep It!

Once you discover this most charming of hairdresses—once your mirror pronounces it perfect—then the problem is—how to keep it looking just as you want it to appear, in spite of the coiffure-hazards which your plans involve!

The answer is quite simple and can be had by every woman! Select a Gainsborough Single Strand Hair Net in the style and color which suits you best. Adjust it carefully before leaving your dressing table, molding your coiffure within its strong, friendly meshes. Then forget about your hair—with perfect assurance that the vision you see in your dressing table mirror will live and be admired!

Endorsed by Style-Leaders Everywhere

Women who are particular in dress, careful in buying—and quick to recognize exceptional value, use and endorse Gainsborough Hair Nets. Due to their natural life-like lustre—a distinctive Gainsborough quality—they blend perfectly with your own hair!

How to Choose the Proper Kind of Hair Net

The discriminating woman knows that different coiffure styles require different kinds of hair nets—just as she knows that different occasions (with their appropriate gowns and hats) require certain coiffure styles.

For afternoon and evening wear—for example—or for any dress occasion, choose the strong Gainsborough Single Strand, in either cap or fringe, because it is truly invisible!

SAYS DEACON HIT HIM DURING CHURCH ROW

Chairman of Tower Grove Park Congregation Gives Version of Easter Skirmish.

A first-hand account of the skirmish between opposing factions of the Tower Grove Park Christian Church, which took place in the parsonage at King's highway and Reber place Easter morning, was given in the Post-Dispatch yesterday by John Smithers of 4284 Delmar boulevard, chairman of the congregation. As was told exclusively in last Tuesday's Post-Dispatch, the church is under police guard with the faction headed by George Britt, former assistant postmaster, in control. Settlement by lawyers is pending. The pastor has resigned and the membership of the church is split in two. Smithers contends that both sides sermons by the Rev. Arthur Wright, to which Mrs. T. R. Ayers of 5219 Washington, avenue, member, took exception, were not the primary cause of the trouble. While he holds no brief for the Rev. Mr. Wright's preaching, he asserts that administration of a $14,000 building fund was the inciting element. The pastor Britt and E. J. Morlock, a member of the building committee, sought sole control of this fund while Smithers and Mrs. Ayers and others were determined they should not have it, according to Smithers.

The Easter Skirmish.
As to that fateful Easter day: "With the resignation of the Rev. Mr. Wright we hoped we had got rid of our church troubles," continued Smithers. "But to our sorrow and great disappointment we found on Easter Sunday that George Britt and his faction were more bitter and hostile than when the Rev. Mr. Wright was with them."
"On entering the parsonage we found an organized and drilled band ready to throw us out should we attempt to assert our rights as officers of the church. We entered, not led by Mrs. Ayers, as reported Tuesday, but by the elders—the overseers of the church. We asked that the presence of Mrs. T. R. Ayers of 5219 Washington, avenue, and that our differences be forgotten, and that we work together as brethren. This attitude was met by a long speech of accusations from Britt, whereupon I was called to take charge of the meeting.

"A standing crowd of the Britt faction almost filled the space in front and when I attempted to call the assembly to order I was struck twice in the back by a deacon and knocked to one side among a crowd of Britt sympathizers. Britt threatened to throw me out. Disregarding their menaces I obtained a semblance of order and put a motion to declare all offices of the Sunday School vacant. This motion was adopted by a large majority.

"We then elected a new Sunday School superintendent to replace Britt and chose a new assistant. During the proceedings Britt and his helpers were singing and endeavoring to interrupt the proceedings. When the newly elected superintendent was called to take charge of the Sunday School, Britt ran to the telephone to call the police.

Phone Torn From Wall.
"I ran for the same telephone and beat him to it. Britt, coming up behind and breathing threats, seized the instrument and endeavored to use it without effect, however, as it was torn from the wall in the scuffle.

"Returning to the seat of war, I took an old lady who had fainted to a house near by, and from there called the police, who responded promptly. I found, when the officers arrived, that matters had quieted down, and sent them away. The services went on without further interruption, the Britt faction taking no part, although I requested them to do so.

By the Associated Press.
ST. JOSEPH, Mich., April 26.—The defense in the trial of Charles E. Ruthenberg, an acknowledged liberal, of Cleveland, charged with criminal syndicalism, today began calling witnesses, having begun its case yesterday by reading into the record depositions attacking the character of the State's star witness, Francis Morrow, a Federal agent.
Frank P. Walsh, attorney for the defense, is following his plan used in the Foster trial of not announcing the name of his witness until he is ready for him to take the stand.
The State closed its case yesterday after throwing its emphasis on a single sentence written by Ruthenberg in October, 1921, in an article entitled "Socialism or Parliament," in which the State contended upheld the charge that he advocated criminal syndicalism as defined by the Michigan law.
The article is declared to have said of the communist plans for seizing power: "And this includes the use of armed force."
An article in the Communist by Robert Minor, a cartoonist of New York, was read as saying the "Ruthenberg (Hill) miners' don't talk 'mass action' but take their guns and close down the sub mine and paralyze the State machinery by military action."
Opening the defense, Attorney Walsh read affidavits attacking Morrow's character taken at Philadelphia and at Camden, N. J. Morrow was the Government's undercover agent who attended the communist party convention at Bridgman, Mich., in the sand hills near here last summer and was one of those arrested with Ruthenberg in the raid.

HOW KANSAS CITY IS GETTING GASOLINE AT CUT PRICES

By the Associated Press.
JEFFERSON CITY, April 26.—Missouri cities envious of the low price of gasoline in Kansas City should follow Kansas City's example, Attorney-General Barrett intimated in a statement yesterday, following a conference with representatives of oil and refining companies operating in Kansas City. The Attorney-General pointed out that Kansas City had imposed a tax on gasoline which forced the oil companies to cut prices to meet the competition offered by filling stations outside the city limits. Another factor in the gasoline price cutting war in Kansas City, Barrett said, was the purchase of gasoline by the Automobile Owners' Association and distributing it at cost to its members.
The conference between the representatives of oil companies and the Attorney-General was the result of charges made by certain independent oil companies of Kansas City that the Standard Oil Co. was cutting prices in an effort to destroy competition. Barrett said that no evidence had been offered sufficient to prove the Standard interests were doing more than meeting prices made by the independents.

Reports Slugs Thrown Into Taxi.

George Morgan, chauffeur for the Yellow Taxicab Co., whose union chauffeurs have been on strike since Dec. 31, 1931, told the police that ball bearings had been thrown into his cab as he drove east in Washington avenue, between Eighth and Ninth streets, at 3:30 p. m. yesterday. The slugs went through a rear window. There were no passengers.

"I wouldn't attempt sewing without the Printed Pattern" said one woman who now makes her own clothes to a woman who never had.

"Here is the name of the pattern piece, this arrow points to the straight of the goods. This blue line is to cut on so that you cut out your pattern and material at the same time. The cutting line is for accuracy. Simple enough, isn't it?"

Thousands of women think it is. Even those who have never made clothes are now saving dollars and dollars on their Spring wardrobe. And all because they are doing their own dressmaking with the simplified pattern—

SOME CONCERN AT WHITE HOUSE OVER FIGHT ON COURT

President Anxious to Avert Party Schism in Connection With Proposal to Enter World Tribunal.

CANCELLATION OF TRIP POSSIBLE

Suggestions of Compromise Heard After Harding's Return—La Follette Attack Plan.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, April 24.—With the next few days expected to bring a more definite crystallization of opinion in Republican ranks of the world court issue, the political aspects of President Harding's unequivocal commitment to the proposal for American participation in his New York address continued to draw to hold the close attention of party leaders.

All shades of reaction to the President's firmly spoken adherence to the proposal were manifest soon after his return to the Capitol yesterday. The preponderance of opinion among leaders, as openly expressed, favored the executive's stand and saw little fear in the warnings from the opposition sources of a party split if the advocacy of American membership in the court was pursued. There also were suggestions of compromise of the proposal. In addition to conference with party leaders here yesterday, the President also received the expressions on the position he has taken from leaders throughout the country.

Anxious to Avert Schism.

While administration officials generally appeared well satisfied with the support accorded to the President on the issue, some of those who talked with Mr. Harding yesterday came away with the impression that he was not himself entirely assured as to the possible effect of the opposition expressed. So anxious was the President to avert any schism in the party, they said, that the situation might possibly lead to cancellation of plans for his western-speaking trip. The President, they pointed out, has repeatedly emphasized that he wishes to keep politics distinct in the background during the trip and while tentatively arranging for it, has reserved final decision as to whether it would be made until he could feel assured that this was possible.

The most open disagreement with the President's stand for American adhesion to the world court proposal expressed publicly was contained in a statement issued by Senator La Follette, Republican, Wisconsin, who accused the advocacy of the proposal to two motives "equally unsound and subversive to the best interests of the American people."

"In its first aspect," said Senator LaFollette, "this is a part of the cleverly-conceived plan of the international bankers to entangle the United States in the affairs of Europe so that American wealth, American soldiers and American ships can be used to safeguard and protect them now almost worthless investments in the bonds, currencies and enterprises of the tottering nations of Europe. In its second aspect, this signification of the world court is an attempt to draw a red herring across the trail of the great domestic industrial and thus seek to save the administration and its supporting special interests from the wrath of an aroused and awakened people."

Says Plan Will Fail.

The Wisconsin Senator, who indicated he is considering a speaking tour through the West late in the summer, predicted that the endeavor to take the United States into the court would fail, saying that
"the American people will insist that their share in all arrangements in foreign affairs that will lead them inevitably into another European war."

Indorsement of the President's stand as openly expressed were more numerous than the declarations of opposition. Representatives Longworth, Ohio, and Graham of Illinois, both of whom are candidates for Republican leadership in the next House, presented their indorsements in person to the President and another White House caller, Gov. Edwin P. Morrow of Kentucky, assured the executive that the people of his State were back of the administration proposal.

None of the Republican leaders in the Senate, where in the last analysis the Senate leader would call to present the views of those included at present to look with some favor on the plan.

Several Republican Senators, however, took occasion to express their views. Senator McNary of Oregon

CANCELLATION OF TRIP POSSIBLE

Suggestions of Compromise
Heard After Harding's Return—
La Follette Attacks Plan.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, April 26.—With the next few days expected to bring a more definite crystallization of sentiment in Republican ranks on the world court issue, the political aspects of President Harding's unqualified commitment to the proposal for American participation in his New York address continued today to hold the close attention of party leaders.

All shades of reaction to the President's firmly spoken adherence to the proposal were manifest soon after his return to the Capitol yesterday. The expenditure of sentiment among leaders, as openly expressed, favored the executive's stand and saw little fear in the warnings from the opposition sources of a party split if the advocacy of American membership in the court was pursued. There also were suggestions of compromise on the proposal. In addition to conference with party leaders here yesterday, the President also received the expressions on the position he has taken from leaders throughout the country.

Anxious to Avert Schism.

While administration officials generally appeared well satisfied with the support accorded to the President on the issue, some of those who talked with Mr. Harding yesterday came away with the impression that he was not himself entirely assured as to the possible effect of the opposition expressed. So anxious was the President to avert any schism in the party, they said, that he might possibly lead to cancellation of plans for his western speaking trip. The President, they pointed out, has repeatedly emphasized that he was not himself entirely assured in the background during the trip, and while tentatively arranging for it, he reserved final decision as to whether it would be made until he had received the views of the party.

The most open disagreement with the President's stand for American participation in the world court protocol expressed publicly was contained in a statement issued by Senator La Follette, Republican, Wisconsin, who attacked the advocacy of the proposal to two motives "equally sinister and subversive to the best interests of the American people."

In his first speech, said Senator La Follette, "this is a part of the deeply-concealed plan of the international bankers to entangle the United States in the affairs of Europe so that American wealth, American soldiers and American ships can be used to safeguard and protect their now almost worthless investments in the bonds, currencies and enterprises of the tottering nations of Europe. In its second aspect, the entanglement of the world court is a device to draw a red herring across the trail of the great domestic issue and thus seek to save the administration and its supporting special interests from the wrath of an aroused and awakened people."

Says Plan Will Fail.

The Wisconsin Senator, who incidentally also is considering a speaking tour through the West late in the summer, predicted that the endeavor to take the United States into the court would fail, saying that the American people will instinctively shun all entanglements in foreign affairs that will lead them into another European war.

Indorsement of the President's stand as openly expressed were more numerous than the declarations of opposition. Representatives Long, South, Ohio, and Graham of Illinois, the Senate leaders in the past House, presented their indorsements in person to the President and another White House caller, Edwin P. Morrow of Kentucky, secured the executive that the plan of his State were back of the administration proposal.

Some of the Republican leaders in the Senate, where in the last analysis the proposal will come to the vote, discussed the matter with the President during the day, although it had been reported that Senator Lodge, the Senate leader, would call for a resolution of those in favor of the plan.

Some Republican Senators, however, took occasion to express their dissent. Senator McNary of Oregon

Scattered Thoughts on Harding's New York Speech and How It Was Received

NEW YORK, April 26.—Under the caption "By a Listener," the New York World yesterday printed the following on the President's address to the Associated Press luncheon:

Mr. Harding, one of our handsomest Presidents, spoke precisely 41 minutes. The President referred to "Congress," not "the Congress," as Mr. Wilson was punctilious in doing. His speech was received in respectful and seemingly appreciative silence. This attitude was interrupted precisely 10 times with applause. The sentiments that brought forth the applause, ran thus:

1. The statement that the United States would not enter the League of Nations through the back door, the side door, or the cellar door.

2. His reference to the need for entering the World Court.

3. That this administration would, under no circumstances, let the United States go into the League of Nations.

4. His statement that the six votes Britain is credited with in the council of the league were not necessarily a source of danger.

5. His apothegm that "National honor is better than international force."

6. Defiantly, that any party that is to be rendered because of its advocacy of the World Court requires a reappraisal of its political assets.

7. That the problem of Mexico's recognition is nearing solution.

8. The statement strongly favoring the Government's support of a merchant marine.

9. That the chairman of the Shipping Board, applauded enthusiastically.

10. That the speaker stood against the doctrine of a pure democracy, favoring representative form of Government.

President Warmly Received.

The President was warmly but not over-enthusiastically received by the crowd, entering a box on the arm of Governor Andrews of the Navy, the Presidential aid and personal aid to the wife of the President, was given.

At the close of the President's speech he got another warm reception. To a reasonably intelligent audience, the speech seemed less addressed to the Democrats than to the Republican realists regarding the World Court.

Several prominent Republicans, weighing their words, said, upon the close of the speech, that if the President persisted in his attitude he would split the Republican party wide open. Several of the newspaper men expressed the belief that Frank Munsey, owner of the Herald, would begin breaching the Republican walls.

Effect of the Speech.

The President's speech produced a deep effect which was joyful in its reaction to the Democrats and rather somber to the Republicans.

ASSAULTS EDUCATION BOARD FOR NEGLECT OF LITTLE CRIPPLES

Medical Society's Committee,
at Conclusion of Clinics, Issues Criticism of 'Slothfulness and Negligence.'

PROMISED ASSISTANCE, BUT IT NEVER CAME

Case of Physically Hand-capped Girl Who Is Compelled to Climb Three Floors Cited.

At the conclusion yesterday of its three-day clinic for crippled children, the Committee on Public Health and Instruction of the St. Louis Medical Society issued a "frank criticism" of the "slothfulness and negligence" of the Board of Education in failing to provide a separate school building or special facilities for physically handicapped children.

It was recalled that more than a year ago, when the Medical Society opened its first clinic for crippled children, executives of the public schools said they were at work on plans for immediately providing facilities for crippled children. So far as tangible results are concerned, the committee declared, nothing has been accomplished since.

The vigorous language with which the committee condemned the Board of Education was aroused in part by the case of a little girl, who appeared in the clinic. She walked with great difficulty, a slow, laborious movement. She related that she is required to go to the third floor of a school building every day, the closing of the stairs requiring, at times, as long as 20 minutes.

Little Cripples Lack Education.

"The child who is physically handicapped needs and has a right to demand better, more specialized education than the normal child," the committee's statement asserted. "He must win his way with his brain, where the normal child can fall back on manual labor. If human agencies do not recognize this fact, the child is doomed to a life of dependence. The child who is physically handicapped is a child who is physically handicapped."

The committee on Public Health and Education of the Medical Society desires to frankly criticize the slothfulness and negligence of the Board of Education in St. Louis in failing to provide a special school for crippled children. The hearing was terminated abruptly by the chairman of the committee, Representative Otto C. Sonnenmann of Carlinville.

The committee is well acquainted with the canal project and its financial burden on the taxpayers of the East Side, said Chairman Sonnenmann. "We have been kept informed by the St. Louis Post-Dispatch and other sources. When the bill was presented by Representative Frank Holtzen of St. Louis, a month ago, and was referred to this committee, we investigated the matter and were made up as to what course we would pursue."

"This public hearing was called more for the purpose of hearing any one who might oppose the bill than for the purpose of recommending for passage."

Several members of the committee objected to the phraseology of the measure, contending that it was not specific, and after discussion it was decided to have a few alterations made before the bill is read in the House next Tuesday.

Extravagance Is Condemned.

The following resolution, adopted Tuesday by the East St. Louis Real Estate Exchange, was read into the minutes of the committee hearing:

"The taxpayers of the East Side Levee and Sanitary District are now burdened with excessive taxes due to the wilful extravagance of the various Levee Boards which have mismanaged the affairs of this district. These boards have bought right of ways and land contracts for work at unreasonably high prices and on terms and conditions altogether to the advantage of the certain landowners and contractors, and to the great disadvantage of the taxpayers, and in other ways squandered the funds of the taxpayers of the district."

It was disclosed at the hearing that the original plan for financing the drainage system, as outlined by H. D. Sexton, the board's first president in 1910, contemplated completion of the work in a period of 11 years at a total cost of $5,500,000. Under present 12, however, advocated by G. Locke Taft, who in 1912 succeeded Sexton as president of the board, and, being carried out by the

LEGISLATORS AGT TO TIE UP EAST SIDE CANAL PLAN

Waterway Committee of Illinois House Recommends
Bill Giving Taxpayers
Control Over Expenditures

PASSAGE WILL BLOCK 8-MILLION PROJECT

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 26.—The first legal step to stop construction of the $5,000,000 "Baby Panama" drainage canal in East St. Louis and adjacent communities, the extravagance and uselessness of which project have been pointed out from time to time by the Post-Dispatch, was taken today when the Waterways Committee of the Illinois House of Representatives recommended passage of a bill providing that any further expenditure of funds on the levee and drainage system must have the approval of the taxpayers who shoulder the financial burden.

If the bill is passed by both branches of the General Assembly, it will become a law July 1, in which event work on the canal would cease at that time. The board of trustees of the East Side Levee and Sanitary District already has appropriated all of its available funds up to that time.

As has been told, the Illinois Legislature in 1907 passed a statute creating the East Side Levee and Sanitary District, with a board of five trustees, and giving the board an unlimited power to issue bonds and carry out engineering projects and to levy taxes up to 2 cents on the $100 valuation.

$1,500,000 Bonds Outstanding.

Bonds totaling $1,500,000 are now outstanding, and the board, under the present law, has power to float additional bond issues regardless of protests by taxpayers. A few weeks ago the board issued an additional bond issue of $250,000 to help meet at the rate of 5 1/2 per cent a year, which was pointed out by the Post-Dispatch at the time, would add $4,500 a year to the district's debt of the taxpayers. A few days later the proposed bond issue was halted by the discovery of a clerical error in the creating ordinance.

A delegation of East St. Louisians, headed by Mayor M. M. Stephens, appeared before the Waterways Committee yesterday to urge passage of the bill to restrict the powers of the levee board. The hearing was terminated abruptly by the chairman of the committee, Representative Otto C. Sonnenmann of Carlinville.

The committee is well acquainted with the canal project and its financial burden on the taxpayers of the East Side, said Chairman Sonnenmann. "We have been kept informed by the St. Louis Post-Dispatch and other sources. When the bill was presented by Representative Frank Holtzen of St. Louis, a month ago, and was referred to this committee, we investigated the matter and were made up as to what course we would pursue."

"This public hearing was called more for the purpose of hearing any one who might oppose the bill than for the purpose of recommending for passage."

Several members of the committee objected to the phraseology of the measure, contending that it was not specific, and after discussion it was decided to have a few alterations made before the bill is read in the House next Tuesday.

WORLD COURT FALSE ISSUE, HE DECLARES

Assails "Economic Despotism That Rules Industrial Life of 98 Per Cent of the People of the United States."

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
MADISON, Wis., April 26.—Senator La Follette gave his opinion today on the issues on which the next presidential campaign should be conducted. It is the nearest authentic statement which he has made that his hat will be in the presidential ring. Following on the heels of the announcement that he will soon tour the West, speaking in many of the cities that President Harding will address, it lends color to the belief that La Follette is making a bid as progressive standard bearer.

La Follette's announcement, entitled "The Issue," comes in the number of his magazine, off the press today. He analyzes the issues of the coming campaign, declaring the "world court" is a false one. The real issue is the "system" control of the Government of the nation. He says "2 per cent of our population own 65 per cent of our wealth."

The world court may serve as a false issue for a time," he declares. "It will serve to lead a number of good people up another blind alley in 1924. But the old game has grown stale. The practical issue is the millions of people who know the real issue that confronts them—and they understand its magnitude."

"They know that their Government at Washington is now, and for nearly a century has been in the hands of small but powerful groups. These groups act together and control it in their own interest."

"How did the economic despotism that rules the industrial life of 98 per cent of the people of these United States attain its control? It took control of the Government. The groups saw at the outset the vital importance of absolute political control. They wanted the favors of Government—they wanted to secure grants, exemptions, tariffs and other legislative and administrative privileges. They wanted to defeat all legislative interference—all Government control."

"Whenever the financial interests of the system will be served best by foreign war, it is ready and it declares war."

"The so-called Chester concession under the Turkish Government furnishes another ugly example of system imperialism, to be defended by system government. It has a potential value so enormous that it overtops the Berlin to Bagdad railway—which history will accept as one of the primary causes of the last war. It is not for our alone. It is a railway and mining concession covering many thousands of miles in Asia, and carrying with it a great area of land, on either side, throughout its entire course, including all mineral rights."

"It is not only potential wealth, but carries war potentialities of a magnitude to satisfy all demands for a great army and navy."

"Can any one fail to see that Government by the system means a Government for speculative investment, not at private risk, which would question the right of foreign complications involving the Government—with all the hazards and horrors of war waiting at the end? The system sees this so clearly that it demands a powerful army and navy to back up, and be ready to die for, its gambling foreign investments, at its word of command."

"What folly to talk of controlling the size of the army and navy; the making of treaties to preserve peace and good will among nations, or the creation of leagues and tribunals to end war under a President elected by Congress elected and controlled by the organized monopoly power which knows no law but might, and is the only element in our country that they belong. The issue is not peace or war."

"I, therefore, submit that no agency to end war, no effective tribunal or court will ever be constructed or permitted to be constructed, by or through any President or Congress, owned and controlled by the system."

"And this brings me to say that the first battle to be won by the poor and women of these United States is to drive the public officials who serve the system out of public life, regardless of the political party to which they belong. The issue is not peace or war. The men are all well known. Their public records condemn them."

"The ballot is your weapon. Will it will be used to elect a President who will be a victor in the victory of this country for real representative government."

AMERICAN HISTORY FOR CHILDREN

Lack of Tact on the Part of President Harrison's Secretary of State, Blaine, Brought Difficulties With Foreign Countries.

SCENE OF DISPUTE OVER SEALING.

By HENDRIK VAN LOON,
Author of "The Story of Mankind."

BESIDES the affair at Samoa, other difficulties, with international complications, arose to show us that we could no longer hope to maintain the comfortable isolation which we had so long enjoyed. Steam and electricity were drawing the world closer and closer together, and it was impossible for us to continue upon our own sweet way without occasionally jolting against some European neighbor. President Harrison's Secretary of State was James G. Blaine. Now the duty of a Secretary of State is to speak for his country in all international affairs. The harmony of our relations with other countries, therefore, depends in large measure upon the wisdom and tact of our Secretary of State, and Mr. Blaine was deplorably lacking in these two very excellent qualities. One of his mistakes brought us into difficulties with England in 1889.

If you will look at a map of Alaska, you will see how the Aleutian Islands separate the Bering Sea from the Pacific Ocean. After our purchase of Alaska from Russia we conceived the idea that the Bering Sea also belonged exclusively to us, and we told England that she could no longer hunt seals there, and started to seize her sealing vessels in those waters.

England promptly demanded reparation, claiming that we had no right to seize her ships outside of the three-mile limit, and the matter was submitted to a court of arbitration which met in Paris, where a number of gentlemen, versed in the intricacies of International Law, explained to us, gently but firmly, that our purchase of Alaska did not include the Bering Sea, and that all seals found outside the three-mile limit were free to be captured by anybody. We were also instructed to pay damages to England for her ships which we had seized.

Another unpleasant incident, involving us in difficulties with Italy, occurred in New Orleans in 1891. The Chief of Police of that city was murdered by members of the Mafia, an Italian black-hand society, who resented the zeal which the police had shown in investigating murders perpetrated by the band. Nine members of the Mafia were brought to trial for this crime, but were acquitted. They were, however, kept in jail on other charges. The good citizens of New Orleans, feeling sure of the men's guilt, and suspecting bribery, broke open the jail and shot the Italian suspects.

When news of this wholesale lynching reached Italy there was great excitement. The Italian Government demanded that the lynchers be punished, and that an indemnity be paid to Italy for the slain men. Secretary Blaine explained to Signor Fava, the Italian Minister, that the Federal Government had no control over the municipal affairs of New Orleans, and Signor Fava, in a great rage, left Washington and returned to Rome, not caring to remain in a country which set such slight value upon the lives of his beloved compatriots.

However, in course of time, the affair blew over. It was found that all but three of the Italians were American citizens, and when Congress voted $25,000 to be divided among the families of the three citizens of Italy, that country considered its honor vindicated, and Signor Fava returned to his pleasant home on Du Pont Circle. But ever since, Italy has refused to ratify an extradition treaty with the United States, and this explains why it is impossible to get hold of fugitives who have committed a crime in America and who have fled to Italy.

Will Exchange Body in Murder Case.

By the Associated Press.

PARSONS, Kan., April 26.—The body of Marion Ashell, who was slain several months ago near Oswego, Kan., will be exchanged for the body of a man who was slain in a similar manner here, and the bodies will be returned to their respective homes.

placities in the killing. Attorneys agreed to having the body exchanged with the understanding that the defendants' physicians will be present at the autopsy. County Attorney Egan will be working on the theory that Ashell was poisoned at his home, and that the bullet wounds found on the body were inflicted after death.

The Men at the Windows

THE bank teller has inherited a reputation, not entirely of his own creating. Men in box offices, at ticket windows, and all who serve the public from behind a rampart have had a hand in building this reputation. The up-to-date teller is busy living it down.

Mercantile tellers are striking a new note in service to the public. Out of long training and their own initiative they have developed the two-way viewpoint—which enables them to see the patron's side as well as their own.

We recommend the service of the men at the Mercantile windows.

AUTO SPEEDERS GET NO MERCY

Judge Who Favors Severity Takes License from 'Mentally Deficient' Drivers.

Special in the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO—No mercy to speeders is my creed," said Judge Charles

L. Bartlett of the Speeders' Court in Detroit, at the banquet of the mid-year safety conference of the Chicago Safety Council.

"The theory that I have adopted," he continued, "is that human life is more important than anything else in the world and that no method can be too severe to save life and property.

An expert psychiatrist sits in my court and observes each case carefully. Defendants that are found mentally deficient usually lose their licenses or are given treatment."

"Women," said Judge Bartlett, "are more careful drivers than men."

JUDGE THANKS JURY FOR CONVICTION OF TRIO AS ROBBERS

Verdict Imposing Eight-Year Sentences on Youths Factor for Law Enforcement, Says Falkenhainer.

TWO FACE TERM OF 14 YEARS IN PRISON

Defense of Charles J. O'Keefe and Two Donovan Brothers Based Solely on Alibis.

Two of three youths, who were convicted of robbery by a jury late yesterday and whose punishment was fixed at eight years' imprisonment each, had been convicted of another robbery three weeks ago and sentenced to penitentiary terms of six years each.

The two convicted youths, who face 14 years in prison, are Charles J. O'Keefe, 22 years old, of 2824 Sheridan avenue, and Thomas Donovan Jr., alias Matthews, 28, of 2943 A. Cass avenue. Donovan's brother, Arthur, 18, of the Cass avenue address, was convicted with the other two yesterday and received an eight-year term.

The jury deliberated from 5:30 to 7:30 p. m. on the case of the trio. When the verdict was rendered, O'Keefe jumped up and asked Circuit Judge Falkenhainer if he could have a new trial.

"Take him out," the judge told a Deputy Sheriff, and turned to thank the jurors for their efforts and gave them assurance that their verdict was a strong factor in law-enforcement and the curbing of crime.

The charge was the robbery of Max Goodman, 4733 Newberry terrace, owner of a dry goods store at 2423 North Sixth street, and his clerk, Nathan Kornblit, 4407 A. Evans avenue, in the store at 6:15 p. m. Jan. 12. They were held up by three youths who had revolvers, and who took $3 from Kornblit, $1 from Goodman, Kornblit's $15 overcoat and $10 suit coat, and $1 worth of silk socks.

Identified as the Robbers.

Goodman, the witness stand, identified O'Keefe and the Donovan brothers as the robbers. Kornblit identified O'Keefe as one of the robbers. Both testified they were made to lie on the floor for about four minutes while the robbers were there, and left with the warning to be still for five minutes or be shot. Kornblit had with him his overcoat, which he said the police had recovered at a house on Luckey street, where O'Keefe and Arthur Donovan were arrested as they came in shortly after a shooting, which was two days after the robbery.

Policemen testified as to the arrest of the defendants. Thomas Donovan, having been "picked up" because he was known as an associate of the others, and that was the end of the state's case. The defense was "out" before the trial.

Six Years for Another Holdup.

O'Keefe and Thomas Donovan Jr. were convicted by a jury in Judge Falkenhainer's court April 5, of being two of three robbers who held up Henry Brumming, his son and a customer in Brumming's saloon and grocery, 4200 W. Kossuth avenue, 20 minutes after the Goodman robbery, and took $33 from two tills. The victims in that case were made to lie on the floor. The defendants were identified as two of the robbers by all three victims.

O'Keefe's defense in part, was the same alibi, that he was at the Luckey street house, while there was alibi testimony that Donovan was at home, sick. The jury fixed the punishment of the defendants at six years' imprisonment each.

Richard J. Hurley of New York and Edward Richards of Denver, who had recently pleaded guilty to a number of Kruger store robberies and were sentenced to 15 years' imprisonment each, testified for the defense that they were two of the robbers. Hurley pointed out Brumming as one of the victims but Richards had testified two weeks previously in the trial of another man charged with holding up a Kruger store that they had committed that crime, and a jury acquitted that defendant.

CONVENTION GETS THROUGH WITH THE EDUCATION REPORT

Draft Amended to Require Six Months' School in Every District in State;
Other Changes Made.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent
of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 26.—
The constitution convention did a big day's work yesterday, completing consideration in committee of the whole of the report of the Committee on Education, summarily rebuking another effort of John H. Lucas of Kansas City to kill time of the body and making a long start on examination of the recommendations of the Committee on Phraseology and Arrangement on the language of suggested changes in the bill of rights.

In completing the first tentative draft of proposed amendments to the constitution, which is the article on education, the convention recommended changes as follows:

Requiring six months' school in every district of the State, instead of four, as at present.

Permitting counties to invest their school funds in bonds of the United States, of Missouri or of any county in Missouri, as well as in loans upon otherwise unencumbered real estate, as now.

Substituting an elective State Board of Education of six members for the present ex-officio State board.

Replacing the present elective State Superintendent of Schools with a State Commissioner of Education to be named by the Board of Education. The convention would allow the Legislature to fix the term of office and per diem compensation of members of the proposed State Board of Education. The recommendation as to a Commissioner of Education would not interfere with the term or emoluments of the present State Superintendent, a specific provision to that effect having been written in the recommendation.

Teacher Pension Plan Rejected.
The convention rejected a strong effort on behalf of teachers of the two larger cities to write into the constitution a provision that "nothing in this constitution shall prohibit the general assembly from authorizing the establishment of teachers' retirement funds," which would have enabled the Legislature either to provide for State teachers' pension funds, or to empower the Boards of Education of cities to pension their own teachers.

It also killed an effort by R. F.
Bowles of St. Louis, negro, to strike out of the Constitution a section providing that "separate free public schools shall be established for the education of children of African descent."

Lucas, who it will be recalled, has made several efforts to get the convention to adjourn sine die, having made the first on the opening day of its session, presented a resolution Tuesday that the convention recess until the Casey proposal to repeal that section of the Constitution under which the convention is meeting is voted upon by the people. It was made a special order for consideration yesterday morning. When Lucas arose to speak, J. A. Collett of Sallabury, moved to table the resolution.
Daniel G. Taylor of St. Louis seconded the motion, which was carried with only the dissent of Lucas and one other delegate, thus permanently disposing of the subject without wasting long hours of discussion.

After the convention had completed consideration of the report of the Committee on Education, it took up consideration of the report of the Committee on Phraseology and Arrangement on proposed changes in the bill of rights. This is regarded as among the most important tasks of the convention, as it means the final fixing of the exact language and punctuation of the recommended organic law.

Former Circuit Judge George H.
Williams of Webster Groves is chairman of this committee and the other members are: C. P. McClure of War-rensburg, Henry P. Lay of Warsaw,
T. J. Brown of Charleston, Alfred N.
Gossett of Kansas City, Norman Cox of Joplin and Romulus E. Culver of St. Joseph.

Purposes of Recommendations.
The recommendations of this committee are designed not to change any meaning sought in any suggested change in the Constitution, but to determine the exact language needed to express the identical meaning desired, nothing more, nothing less. It passes upon only such matter as the convention has tentatively accepted.

After the Phraseology Committee has worked over propositions, they then go to the convention for second reading and a vote and then are taken up once more for final passage.
Although this procedure may appear as unduly drawn out, it must be remembered that the present Constitution has stood since 1875 with only few changes, and that language designed to stand the test of a long period of years cannot be too carefully chosen.

Mrs. W. W. Martin, chairman of the Committee on Education, announced that she would ask for immediate action by the convention today on report of the committee of the whole on the article on education, which after that will be ready for examination by the Phraseology Committee.

BILL TO RELIEVE STATE DEPOSITORIES VETOED

Bids for Excess Funds Likely to Be Called for and Banks That Ignored Contracts Sued.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
JEFFERSON CITY, April 25.—Gov. Hyde last night vetoed a bill passed by the last Legislature designed to relieve the state depositories banks of their liability to the state for the full rate of interest they contracted to pay to the state on such portions of its funds as they contracted to take into their custody. In 1921 money was hard to get and the banks were ravenous for state money, the average interest which they offered being 5.12 per cent, each bank bidding for a specified number of eightieths of the funds. Then one-eighth of the funds consisted of about $150,000. In the last two years, however, the money market has eased, interest rates have fallen and the state funds have increased until one-eighth now is about $350,000.

Some Ignored Contracts.
Many banks have flatly refused to meet their contracts with the state, which required that they deposit negotiable securities at the rate of dollar for dollar of state money allotted to them up to the maximum of their contract quota.

These banks came to the last Legislature, where they had the backing of State Treasurer Thompson, in asking to be relieved of their contracts. The Legislature accepted their plea and enacted a bill drafted to suit them. Gov. Hyde, however, has taken a different view. In vetoing the bill he declared:

"The only question presented by this bill is whether or not the state shall arbitrarily relieve and release the defaulting banks from their contracts and accept without hope of redress a lower rate of interest on the state funds. The bill accomplishes nothing else and evidently has no other purpose. Under the constitution and the law as it at present exists, the State Treasurer has power to reject under proper advertisement and bidding all amounts of money upon which the original depositories have defaulted, at such rate of interest as he can obtain at such re-letting. The same result would be accomplished under this bill with the additional result of relieving the banks of their liability."

No Good Reason for Law.
"No good reason exists why this bill should become a law. If the Legislature desired to relieve the banks of any responsibility they should have done so directly, and have provided for the abrogation of the old contracts directly, and a reletting of all the funds. This bill attempts to accomplish indirectly and by subterfuge the same result as would have occurred by the direct abrogation of all the contracts. Since this is the necessary result of the bill and since the State Treasurer has the power under the law as it exists to reject the surplus not accepted by the banks, it is my opinion that the state should hold its present advantageous rate and its right of action, and proceed to re-let under the present law."

Thompson has found it necessary under the default of several smaller banks to place about $100,000 of state money with the Commerce Trust Co. in Kansas City at 5 per cent, which is all that institution would pay on the surplus above its contract quota, for which it is paying in excess of 5 per cent.

GAS COMPANY TAKES HORSE FOR MAN'S BACK METER RENT

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
LEXINGTON, Ky.—A horse, saddle and bridle paid the meter rent which J. M. Adams owed the Johnson County Gas Co., according to a report brought here from Paducah, Ky. A controversy arising over the payment of the gas bill, Adams after deciding to make settlement, had a sign made, which he attached to the horse, reading: "This horse is to pay my back meter rent" seeking to show in this way the alleged exorbitance of the bill. He led the placarded animal to the gas office. A crowd gathered to witness the tender, curious to see what the gas company would do about it. The scene and auctioned off the animal to the highest bidder for the amount horse, called an auctioneer to the of the bill.

GOLF INNOCENTS ABROAD

Close-ups of Personality and Game of American Invaders

By PATTERSON McNUTT

No. 1—Jess Sweetser.

JESS SWEETSER, the Yankee siege gun, is expected to do the heaviest blasting when the American golf team goes over the top of British bunkers, in the English amateur championship at St. Andrews and the Walker Cup matches at Deal. Told in the terse argot of the army that is a revealing close-up of the American national amateur golf champion.

Meet Jess in the clubhouse and you meet a somewhat diffident, personable young college man. Meet him head on in a golf match and you are liable to wonder how the twentieth century jumped the century why, out of a country of one hundred million people, it had to pick on you.

Sweetser is a rangy, flat muscled blond and seen on the links at a distance he might be mistaken for some Greek and suddenly come to life. Look at him as you stand just off the tee and watch him step into his drive and you see a bad, hard-boiled guy who has suddenly become a dashing amateur.

Sweetser's game just as a matter of mechanics is a thing of beauty and a joy for 36 holes, but it is his fighting spirit that makes him the sensational champion he is. His swing is short, powerful and accurate. When he is right he is a good putter, but the mechanical feature of his game is great power perfectly controlled. At Brookline last September he wasn't off the line through the fairway more than once or twice a day during the entire week of play.

The most character-revealing incident in his march to the championship at Brookline occurred in the last round of his final match with "Chick" Evans.

On the thirteenth hole "Chick" was away after the drive and smacked an iron shot three feet from the pin. The shot looked to be unbeatable, but Jess yanked a spade masher from his bag and promptly proceeded to lay his second TWO FEET from the hole!

He won there with a "birdie" and practically clinched the match.

Any golfer who can play that kind of "pinch" golf can win any championship in the world if he gets his normal share of the breaks.

Predicting in golf is as dangerous a pastime as giving advice, but I, for one, will pass away with surprise if Jess parks himself under the British amateur crown when all the shooting is ended at Deal.

Visiting Boxers On Armory Card

Business Men's Club to Show Kid Sparks, Johnny McCoy and Frankie Conway.

A double bill, which will feature the next boxing show at the Armory under the auspices of the Business Men's Athletic Club on May 2 will see four visiting boxers featured two of them new to St. Louis fans.

In one-half of the double windup, Frankie Osner, lately of Chicago, and Kid Sparks of Terre Haute, will exchange wallop; in the other half, Johnny McCoy of Cleveland and Frankie Conway of New York are matched. All are bantamweights.

Osner is well known here and will make St. Louis his home, he says. He started fighting while a mere youth living in Alton. His recent showings in defeating Mike Kramer and in winning from Peeves Kaiser on a disqualification, attracted considerable attention. Sparks, his May 2 recently fought a draw here with Mike Kramer. Sparks is a real wallop.

McCoy and Conway are two high-class boys according to their records. McCoy has flattened a lot of good fighters, including our own Eddie Meier and Frankie Mason, flyweight champion at one time. He owns a verdict over Young Montreal and a draw with the redoubtable Carl Trema.

Conway knocked out Bobby Dyson and has fought all the top-notch Eastern bantams, including Champion Joe Lynch. He says he has yet to suffer a decisive defeat. Both McCoy and Conway are hard hitters.

Two other bouts are on the program.

OXFORD TO SEND STAR RELAY TEAM TO POST IN PENNSYLVANIA MEET

By Walter Camp.

NEW YORK, April 26.—Enough class is absent in advance to make the relay races at Franklin Field Friday and Saturday the greatest ever held in this country. Thrilling contests are bound to result from the talent that is entered.

The international flavor is added through the entry of Oxford. Englishmen have beaten our best twice and it is time we took their measure. But whether we can is a question. They are entered for the distance medley on Friday and for the two-mile on Saturday, while Morgan will compete in the two-mile run.

In the medley Henwick, a good quarter-miler, will carry the Oxford colors, while Stevenson, an old Princetonian, will run the half. Hewitson, the three-quarter, and Milligan, the captain and a startling performer, will wind up with the mile, which, under anything like favorable conditions, he will negotiate well under four minutes and 20 seconds.

In the two-mile Stevenson, Hewitson and Milligan again run, the fourth man being Miller, a good half-miler. Stevenson is reported as having been chosen by Captain Milligan as his anchor man. It is a good quartet and will take some beating.

Alexander Ferguson proved a pitching ace to the hole for Manager Chance in the final clash with the Athletics and the Red Sox copped, 2 to 1, giving them an even split on the series.

Greb to Meet Foley.
HOT SPRINGS, Ark., April 26.—Manager Eddie Barnshack announced here today the completion of arrangements for a match between Harry Foley of this city and Harry Greb, former light-heavyweight champion of America. The match is to take place at Peoria on May 14.

The largest advance sale in the history of the White Sox for opening day was announced today. Willie Kamm, the $19,000 Coast star, will make his Chicago debut.

Red Crown

The High-Grade Gasoline

Everywhere and Everywhere the Same

WITH the constantly increasing number of hard roads, the display lines above take on a new and deep significance. You are getting out into the country more—you are motoring greater distances.

You count your day's mileage by the hundreds—before it was by tens.

You are using more gasoline because hard roads permit greater speed.

No Matter Where You Go—

you can get Red Crown Gasoline and you won't have to change the adjustment of your carburetor. This would not hold true with some brands of gasoline sold in restricted areas.

Red Crown is the best, most economical gasoline you can buy. Once you have the right carburetor adjustment you can go and keep going without a sputter—you will have an abundance of sustained pulling power and all the speed you engine can develop.

You will find a Red Crown Service Station every few blocks in the city and every few miles in the country.

Why Is an Expert?

BASEBALL commentators to-day present the well known "diametrically opposite" in view-point the National League baseball race. Mr. Davis Walsh, whose opinions are echoed by a long line of syndicate subscribers, tells his customers that there is no reason to believe that the Giants are going to run away with the pennant by July 4.

John E. Foster, whose voice reverberates with union and authority throughout an equally wide range, thinks that "the only question about the National League race is how far ahead of the field the Giants will be on July 4."

Considering that the remarks came after all of eight games had been played, the expressing of any opinion whatever on the subject means an assumption of clairvoyance powers that would turn any old horoscope-caster Nite-green with envy.

It is a well established axiom in all branches of athletic endeavor that the pace-maker at the start is seldom out there at the finish.

Aladdin, the Lamp, Please.

VIEWING the fight situation, one hardly knows whether he should rub his eyes or Aladdin's lamp. Arabian Nights tales and Baron Munchausen's imaginings sound like trivialities compared to the bizarre facts visible in the world of Riff. Consider some of the mangle one reads about:

Jack Dempsey hesitates to accept $200,000 to box a setup like Tom Gibbons.

A slant-eyed Filipino, Pancho Villa, of a race supposed to have no traits adaptable to boxing, is to meet Jimmy Wilde for the world's flyweight title—Wilde, of the stock that begot the boxing game, Iron Man Muldoon, in whose bright lexicon "retreat" is absent, reverses himself in the disclaimer of Johnny Kilbane.

In Chicago, where boxing is prohibited by State law, they hold boxing contests with gate receipts of $20,000.

Ten championship fights involving $5,000,000 receipts, are contemplated in this country within five months.

An ancient dub comes out of four years retirement and will get $25,000 to appear in a test bout.

A fighter who never arrived is to get a like sum for meeting a venerable cheese; he also has the promise of a Dempsey fight as a prize.

A third-rate Irishman, who thought a $500 purse a non-event, beat a fourth-rate black and now rides on the crest to El Dorado.

And so on, indefinitely.

A brass band and a three-ply gail plus a two-pound footcase, will get you a fortune in the ring any day.

Aladdin will have to get some new magic if he wants to keep pace with these enchanted days in the fight world.

PESEK DEFEATS EUSTACE IN MATCH AT CHICAGO

CHICAGO, April 25.—John Pesek of Ravenna, Neb., heavyweight wrestler, won a one-fall match from Alan Eustace of Wakefield, Kan., in 43 minutes and 38 seconds here last night with a double wristlock.

Renato Gardina of Boston defeated Dick Davecourt of California in two straight falls, the first after one hour, four minutes and nine seconds, with a flying mare. The second fall came in six minutes and 29 seconds with a headlock.

Stefan Zbynski threw Demetrios Tofanina in a one-fall match in 13 minutes and 12 seconds, with a standard crotch hold.

SAYS TRANSPORTATION
IS GREATEST PROBLEMCongressman Newton, in Talk Asserts Facilities Must Be Enhanced.

The transportation problem of the United States is so important as to endanger the security of the form of government of this nation, Congressman Cleveland A. Newton of the Tenth (St. Louis) Missouri District, said yesterday in a talk at the Chamber of Commerce luncheon.

"Transportation is the greatest problem before us today," he said. "It is a problem which must be solved. If the railroads cannot solve it, and they have not been able to do so, the Government must find means of doing so. The question is of such vast importance as to demand a speedy solution if this nation is to live. The Government must either take over the railroads or find means of enhancing transportation facilities."

"It is a question of transportation only. The average person is not vitally interested or affected by railroads, highways or waterways, as such, but all are interested in transportation. I am glad to notice an awakening among the citizens of the nation to the importance of that question."

"We need more publicity for public utility. I would like to see a campaign for better transportation carried into every congressional district in the United States. I hope we will be able to get the President and the administration back of a proposition to pass laws which will prevent the present cut-throat competition which enables the railroads to stifle river transportation."

"I have been asked at Washington what assurance we have that barges will be operated on the rivers if they are made fully navigable. I am satisfied that there would be immediately available $100,000,000 for large line equipment from private enterprise, all up and down the rivers if laws were enacted preventing the cut-throat competition in rate matters."

"Private enterprise now has not guarantee that if it does put money into large lines the Interstate Commerce Commission will not authorize competing railroads to make further reductions in rates which would make profitable operation of the barges impossible."

Gives Discrimination Examples.
Congressman Newton, who with James E. Smith, president of the Mississippi Valley Association, was active in having Congress increase this year's appropriation for rivers and harbors from $27,500,000 to $28,000,000, gave a number of illustrations of what he called discrimination of rates in favor of railroads and against river transportation. The figures have been presented by him on several previous occasions here.

He said the $27,500,000 appropriation recommended for rivers and harbors by the Bureau of the Budget was determined upon after members of the War Department had been before the bureau for just 20 minutes. He said that when he went before the bureau the then Director of the Budget, Charles G. Dawes, said: "I don't know a damned thing about waterways of this country but I see we have made a mistake."

Smith, in a brief talk at the luncheon, read a telegram from J. W. Worthington, president of the Tennessee River Improvement Association, with headquarters in Washington, which said: "The Secretary of War signed the allotment of the rivers and harbors appropriations today." Smith explained that this formally released the congressional appropriation for expenditures under plans already approved. The money will be available June 30.

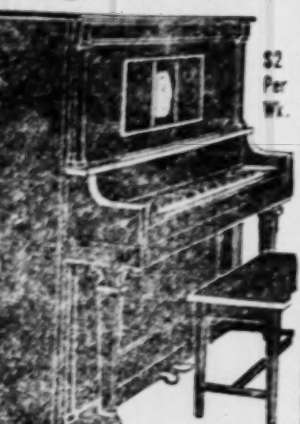

Nature of the Gathering.
The luncheon was in the nature of a celebration of the arrival Tuesday night from Pittsburgh of the first shipment of steel from that city to St. Louis by water. Officers of the steamer Alliquippa, which towed the barges, were present, as were officials of the company making the shipment.

An entertainment feature was a talk by Raymond Hitchcock, now playing in St. Louis.

Finds Most Women Losing Their Health, Beauty and Youthful Activity. Cadomene a Blessing to Such Women.

Most women as they approach or pass the 40 mark in life, know that they are slipping. They can see it in their mirror—feel it in their hearts. They are miserably unhappy for each day seems to bring new aches, pains, worries and wrinkles. And who can blame them for being unhappy? Good health, beauty of face and figure, graceful strength and youthful energy are dear to the heart of every woman. She knows when these slip away that love, devotion and happiness also often take their leave. She is left alone—weak, ill and unhappy. But now—

All over the entire country, women of all ages are halting with delight, with devotion, with joy in their hearts, the wonderful restorative power of Cadomene. Cadomene is bringing to them a degree of health, beauty, strength and energy such as they never dreamed of before. Cadomene is changing their lives from one of miserable existence, to one of health, happiness, love and beauty.

The great permanent restoration tendencies of Cadomene is due to its sensible, thorough and scientific manner of action. Unlike many so-called tonics that merely act as a temporary stimulant, Cadomene starts at the beginning and builds you up step by step. First it aids nutrition so that the food you eat is more completely utilized in the restorative process of your body. Then it aids in building up your blood until it is vibrant and rich and red—the kind of blood that glows and tingles as it courses through your body. When this cycle of restoration is completed, every nerve, every cell, every tissue in the entire body becomes re-stored and are made healthy, active and strong.

If you are sincere, in your wishes, don't dodge and run away from good health any longer! Get a package of Cadomene Tablets from your druggist today and take one or two after each meal, three times a day. That's all you need do—except watch for these results that begin to appear after a week or two. You should notice the color returning to your cheeks, the sparkle to your eyes, the bright sheen to your hair. You should notice the return of that happy cheerful spirit, that graceful strength and that peppy youthful energy. And above all, you should experience that exhilaration, that glorious buoyant feeling that comes only with supreme and matchless health! If you don't merely wish for these things—but really want them—start taking Cadomene Tablets today! They are positively guaranteed, and are sold and highly recommended by all good druggists—everywhere.

FIRST SHIPMENT OF STEEL BY BARGE TO ST. LOUIS

This photograph was taken from the Municipal Bridge, looking north along the levee towards the Eads Bridge, as the load went upstream. The steamboat Alouette, pushing the three barges, is the property of the Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation of Pittsburgh, shippers of the steel. A reception committee representing the Chamber of Commerce and Mississippi Valley Association greeted the commercial pioneers from the city harbor boat, Erastus Wells, the smoky steamer on the right.

JAPANESE MEDICAL SCIENTISTS VISIT ST. LOUIS HOSPITALS

From left to right: Dr. Akira Fujinami, professor of pathology and pathological anatomy, Kyoto Imperial University; Dr. Sahachiro Hata, professor of medicine, Keio University, and director Kitasato Institute; Baron Yoshihiro Takaki, chief surgeon and professor of surgery, Tokio Charity Hospital and Medical College; Dr. Kinnosuke Miura, head of the commission, professor of medicine, Tokio Imperial University, and physician-in-ordinary to the Emperor, and who accompanied the then Crown Prince on his European tour last year.

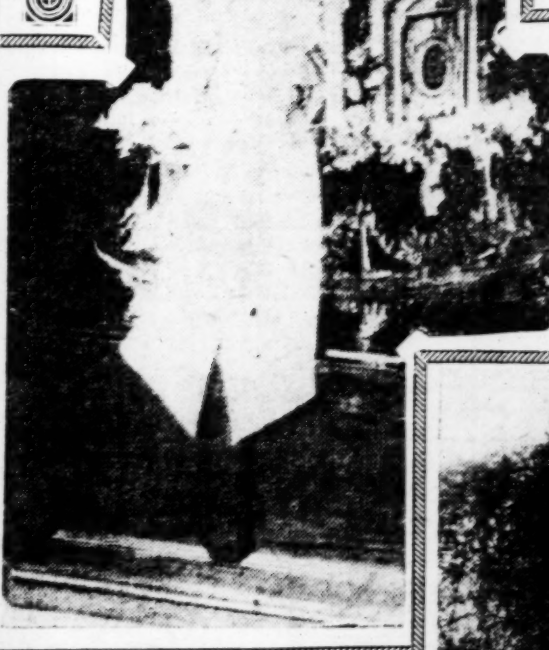

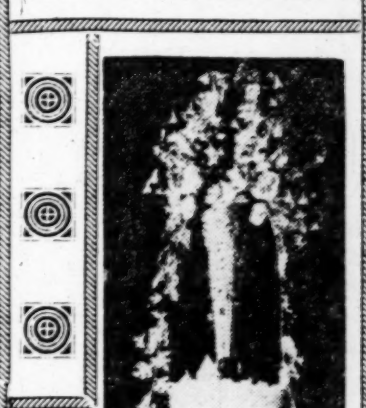

JAPAN MAKES IT EASIER FOR THE KOREANS

Just to show that they want to let bygones be bygones and to be on a perfectly friendly basis, the Japanese have announced they will dismantle the mimi zika, or ear monument, on the highest hill around Kyoto. This was erected by Taiko, a hero of old Japan, who celebrated his triumph over the Koreans by cutting off the ears of thousands of dead. It is believed the dismantling of the monument will tend to soften Korea's animosity against Japan.

The First Truthful Biography Ever Written of SARAH BERNHARDT

By Madame Pierre Berton
Her life-long intimate friend of Madame Berton Sarah Bernhardt said: "She sympathized with me; she knew my feelings and understood me better than anyone I knew. And she married the man whom at one time I loved best on earth."

THIRD INSTALLMENT.

THE birth of Sarah Bernhardt's only child, Maurice, came when she was 15 years old. It brought about a miraculous change in her; overnight, it seemed, she left the frailty, irregular night life she had known—dropped it like an autumn leaf. Motherhood gave her an emotion that was almost startling in its intensity. She was a tigress fighting for her young. Within five years she was a famous actress.

Maurice, born in 1867, is now 56 years old. He gave Sarah a great deal of trouble throughout her life and squandered a good part of her fortune. Yet his arrival provided her with the element that made her a great actress.

History gives us no finer example of the inspiration of motherhood—in spite of the details of Maurice's birth. The concerned Sarah became expert in art, mighty in labor. And she lavished on her tiny son a love she had never believed herself able to feel for any human being.

Before revealing the detailed story of Maurice and the mystery of the day preceding when Sarah was still at the Conservatoire and was also a figure in the night life of Paris. At this time she was this and fragile looking. Doctors attributed her weakness to the accident in Brittany when she was 4 years old; also to the youth of her mother at the time of her birth combined with the conditions which hindered her mother from nursing her. An eminent physician of the day, Dr. Trautlet, a friend of the Duke de Morny, examined her and said that she was in danger of becoming tubercular and in any case could not live beyond 20 or 25. The good doctor himself did not live long enough to know to what extent Sarah's magnificent will power would refute his prediction.

She herself used to declare, "I am thinner than a skeleton." So lean were her legs that she invariably wore ground-length dresses to hide them and at that time absolutely refused to play parts which necessitated wearing tight.

One incident concerning her debut at the Conservatoire should be told. The occasion was a matinee devoted to professional folk and critics and one of the latter, an old and embittered man named Prioleau, was credited with holding the futures of young actresses in his hands. He was the dean of the critics, and as such occupied the privileged position on a chair in the wings.

The better to see the performance, he shifted his chair until it partly blocked one of the exits. Sarah, making an exit backward, tripped and fell over the chair. Recovering, she seized the chair legs and heaved it over—the critic with it. Then she turned on her heel with a vindictive glance at the man who had so nearly ruined her.

Horrid! actresses informed Bernhardt that the man she had assaulted and insulted was none other than Prioleau, whose mere word could ruin or make an actress.

Returning to where the choleric old gentleman was poking himself up, Sarah set herself squarely in front of him, her eyes glaring fire.

"If you dare to say or write a word against me," she warned him, "I will scratch out your eyes!"

Whether Prioleau took her threat seriously or not is not known, but it was noticeable that never, either in praise or in blame, did he mention the name of Sarah Bernhardt. He died four years later.

Other biographers will describe in detail Sarah's early theatrical career; suffice it for me to say that she was a failure at the Conservatoire and on leaving there was forced to take a walking-out part at the Comedie Francaise.

Nothing unless it was her eccentricity, distinguished her from the hundreds of other lovely girls at that time adorning the Paris theatrical world. She was wilful and spoiled; she had fits of tremendous energy which were always succeeded by spells of laziness sometimes lasting for months. She had given up her attempts at painting after a moderate success (which included the exhibiting of several portraits at the Salon); and her talent for acting still lay dormant.

She and her younger sister, Jeanne, then only 14 years old, were seen at public balls night after night, dancing with young men, some of whom were included among the city's most disreputable characters. Sarah was frequently a guest at smart but questionable entertainments in the aristocratic homes of titled acquaintances. It was at such parties that Jeanne learned, later on, the terrible habit of morphine-taking, a vice which Sarah always despised.

Sarah at this time was invariably costumed in the latest fashion. With her slim body, blue eyes, flaming hair and lovely pale face, she was a striking figure, but she was in grave danger of falling into the bottomless pit which still exists in Paris for beautiful girls. She was a member of the fastest set in a fast city. She had no morals, men liked her, and she was always in need of money. It seemed as if only a miracle could save her.

But the miracle happened. At one of the gay parties she met the Prince de Ligne, a member of the Belgian royal family. Tall, suave, handsome, he drew Sarah to him like steel to the magnet. With complete abandon she gave herself and the result was the only boy which she named Maurice.

The general public has never known the name of Maurice's father, but Sarah told me on several occasions that the baby came as the result of her ardent love affair with the Prince. And of course I believe her, despite the details of the aristocratic life.

Picture the scene on the day of Maurice's birth: the day—seemingly so long and so distant—from which was to spring this unexpected story of another life.

Sarah's total wealth was 200 francs—still, she told me afterward, she owed ten times that amount in small bills scattered about among the tradesmen. Her mother was ailing and had to be taken to the couch that was to be her deathbed some years later. And Sarah was too proud to appeal to her other friends.

The birth itself was a difficult one and by rights Sarah should have remained in bed for a month or more. Prince de Ligne knew of the situation and through the long days Sarah's pale, eager face was at the window, hoping for a glimpse of his handsome figure coming up the street.

When a week had passed and there was not a son in the house the young tragedienne sent a message to the Prince, imploring him to take pity on her and her child.

A note came and Sarah tore it open with trembling hands. The Prince's reply was brutal: "I know a woman named Bernhardt, but I do not know her child." The envelope inclosed—50 francs!

to be ashamed of myself, Drummer! What would our neighbors think if we brought our babies up in an old house? Are you getting lazy? I do believe you are!

Now there is nothing that Drummer the Woodpecker despises more than laziness. There isn't a day further on him. He didn't say a word, but promptly went to work. And the way these chips came out of that doorway was proof that he wasn't lazy.

At last Mrs. Drummer decided that the hollow they had cut was deep enough. She smoothed the wall, and then poked her head out long enough to say, "I think, my dear, that I am about ready to make a bed for those eggs I hope we will have soon."

Now Mrs. Drummer does not make a nest of straw and feathers and other soft things, as so many birds do. She uses for her bed just one, very fine, chips and shavings of wood. They make a very comfortable and soft bed. Of course, all the chips had been thrown out. This had been necessary to get them out of the way while they were making that hollow deeper. Where do you think she got the chips for that bed? From the roof. Yes, sir; from the roof!

You know that hollow had been started down from the entrance. Now she went to work to carve that hollow out, and instead of throwing the chips out, she just dropped them to the bottom. So by the time she had made the hollow high enough to suit her, there was a nice bed of chips at the bottom.

"There," said she as she dropped the last chip, "our home is finished!" Drummer flew over to that favorite dead limb and once more he cut a tat-tat-tat out of it. He was drumming for joy.

M'LORD O' THE WHITE ROAD

By CEDRIC FRASER

CHAPTER VIII (Continued)

Shale stood with bowed head for a long time while Aunt Genevieve bit her lips with regret for having said so much in her face.

"Aye, ma'am, you're right," he said at last, speaking in a low voice.

"There indeed a son to be the mirror of my husbandness becometh," the beauty of her presence.

Tom's started to the old lady's words—that had something of a surprise in them. "Twas fine to feel the boy—her boy, as she liked to think him—had still some good left in him."

"Nay, do not grieve so, Geoffrey," she said softly. "After all, thou art a man and men are granted much license. Besides, she has been faithful herself, though not to justify the stories that are told. For she is very beautiful, and the beauty of youth is always the poison of older women. There is one notion story in very special which I'd warn you to heed not, and that is that she did fence with an—"

She stopped suddenly, for Shale's hand was uplifted in a gesture of reproach.

"Nay, ma'am, nay—speak it not. Such babbles are not worthy of the breath. I bid you good morn, aunt—dear."

And as he strode down the path, his handsome head held high, the Lady Genevieve laughed a queer little laugh and whispered to herself:

"My boy—my own dear boy—hath wonderfully improved of late. These stories must be lies!"

CHAPTER IX

The Tall Peter Is Resurrected.

AFTER breakfasting alone in his room, Shale had a sad struggle getting into his fine new clothes. They fitted him well enough, but the jacket of simple green silk bordered with gold lace was a trifle tight across the shoulders.

"Egad, but I look a mighty important personage now, Peter," he said, as he surveyed his handsome figure in the long dressing glass. "What with green silk borders, jacket and waistcoat and belted shoes, I am a veritable dandy. Nay, Peter, man!"

As he later approached with a big bowler hat in his hand, there is enough of that upon my wig. Faith, I'm as much four about me as I could be a full-sized man."

He accepted his black velvet three-cornered hat and gold-knobbed staff, then stood back for a final survey.

"Well, Peter," he said, "Am I more like myself in this attire?"

Peter stared at him in open admiration.

"Lookers, m'lord," he gasped, "you're the very spirit of—of yourself!"

Shale took his purse and tossed him a guinea in most approved fashion.

"Did I do it well," he asked.

Peter grinned.

"Aye, m'lord. But you'll improve still more with practice."

"You rascal, man!" laughed Shale. "Now methinks I will take a walk around my estate, and see if I can rather the custom of it."

So saying he strode from the dressing room, and descended the wide staircase.

Half way down the stairs he was arrested by the sound of a deep singing voice drifting in through an open casement.

I love the hunt,
I love the hounds,
I love my horse to carry me,
But most of all
I love sweet Paul,
The maid that's going to marry me.

Heigh ho, heigh ho, but I am a weary soul.

A grooming horses all day long,
And singing of a lovesick song,
Which makes me feel more dolt,
Which makes me feel more dolt.

The song ceased, and gave place to a steady hissing noise.

Thrusting his head through the casement, John found that he was looking out into the stable yard in the rear of the Hall.

Seated on an upturned pail with the cobblies around him strewn with horse manure was a stable hand hard at work polishing a bridle the while he looked like a persistent beggar.

There would have been nothing unusual about him had it not been for one thing. Around his head was a bandage, and it supported a big hawk-stroke which was plastered over his left eye.

Around the hawk-stroke the left eye was beaming merrily to the not inconsiderable annoyance of the man.

Suddenly he leapt high into the air with a yell of pain, and looked fairly sick about him.

"That's the second time within two minutes summit 'as struck me hand-axe," he spluttered, rasping out an oath. "There's a student behind this here, there's a."

He cast his one free eye around the stable yard, and an exclamation of satisfaction escaped him.

Shooping he picked up something from the ground.

"A pea," he ejaculated. "Ah—now somebody must 'ave shied that at me."

He looked around him furiously. "Come out," he roared. "Come out, who ever ye are, an' I'll duck ye in the horse-trough."

There was no response, whereupon he roared again.

"Show yer head, ye coward, an' I'll split it open for ye. A bit of a poor wounded man wat can't see ye. Come out into the open, and I'll bang up both yer eyes."

There was a ripple of soft musical laughter.

A curly, yellow head peeped from behind a huge water butt, and a dainty hand held a long tube to pointed lips. Then another pea sped upon his rattling air.

But now the stable hand seemed to have lost all his ferociousness, and instead of attempting to carry out any of his fine threats, contented himself with standing still and pulling his forehead awkwardly.

Lady Gloria advanced to within three yards of him, and raised her hand to his forehead.

"Nay, m'lord," groaned the man, "I fear you, 'tis torture to hit me hand-axe."

She laughed her rippling laugh again.

"Tis your own fault, Tom Brown," she said. "You should not have attempted to follow me when I fled from here. 'Twas a most ungracious display you made at the best."

Tom hung his head.

"Twas dark, m'lord, and he was a terrible size of a man."

"Was he, Tom. How big was he?"

"Nigh seven feet tall, m'lord, and with shoulders like an ox. A giant he was—not a man, m'lord."

He looked about him carefully, then looked over.

"Listen, m'lord, I don't believe he was a man at all."

She stared at him in amused surprise.

"Not a man, Tom, what was he then?"

"I think he was a spooky fellow, m'lord."

"A spooky fellow," she laughed. "What mean you?"

"A cloven hoof, m'lord, a devil's head 'n' horns, a horrid goblin."

She laughed now.

"What makes you think that, Tom?" she asked.

He looked at his feet and tried to appear very wise.

"I have my reasons, m'lord."

"Your reasons, Tom, and what are they?"

"Aye, well, may you ask, m'lord," he muttered.

She stamped her little foot in tom-foolery.

"Tell me at once, Tom Brown, what you mean. Do you hear?"

He looked about him again, then he said:

"Well, m'lord, 'tis like this: You see, that night when we had the fight with this—this spooky giant, m'lord, I got to grips with him, and I happened to—er—notice that he wore a queer hat on his head. A tall hat it was, all covered with gray fur."

M'lord laughed.

THE COMMON SENSE WILL OF A WISE WOMAN

By Sophie Irene Loeb.

A WOMAN left a will in which she directed that her husband live on the income of her securities, and then added this codicil: In case my husband should marry, my house and furniture and securities are to be sold for the children.

Except enough furniture to make his home comfortable, the children to decide justly what he should have.

This is merely to protect the children. I shall be glad to have him marry.

This was a sensible woman. There will always be a happy memory of her in the hearts of her children and her husband. She must have had a plan.

She took it from him and, without a word, walked away with it.

And while Tom looked after her and scratched his tousled head in perplexity, John Shale gave a deep sigh and, turning, walked back to the room where he had left Peter.

The latter was spreading out some more gorgeous garments of silk for wear at dinner that night.

"Peter," said Shale, looking down at his next trimmed finger nails.

"Yes, m'lord."

"Where were you last night?"

Peter bent and went on sorting the garments.

"I took a little walk last night, m'lord."

"Riverhead way?"

A silence, then—

"Aye, m'lord."

Another long silence.

"And what happened, Peter?"

Peter flushed, but he looked Shale full in the face.

"Well, m'lord, I—I carried him away to his—his last resting place, m'lord."

Shale bowed his head and swinging slowly round walked silently from the room.

And as he went, he mind visualized the scene which Tom Brown had undoubtedly witnessed—the stalwart Peter carrying the poor, mutilated body of his dead master away from the pretty little glade in the woods.

What was the gain by such a deed? Nothing but sadness and the dead man could not be with him. He had to leave him.

very unselfish spirit and truly her husband.

It takes a woman who can do for his happiness to win him as this. The other kind of woman who keeps her husband tied to her strings long after she has lost the power of inflicting any punishment.

Many a woman has made a bad promise her husband to satisfy her own feelings was alive. And many a woman has been lovely and beautiful, and of some seeming to be faithful to the money deal.

How much better this woman planned in the will will be, if she had some one else who would like to spend his years in the knowledge that the "God bless you" of her own what a reverence she has for her own life.

While this case is a common one is when a man leaves his wife money with an attachment—that is, if she again she loses the attachment made for her.

This is one of the worst selfishness. I know a woman helped her husband during his pains of his business, herself of many things in which he might have the advantage to succeed. For years she with him, but only doing work, but aiding him in his.

And when he died he left her a large sum of money, but she was so miserly that she never gave a cent of it to her husband.

It is unfair, to say the least, what is the result? A dead husband being buried, respected and loved, in the end his surviving wife, who has but the opposite sentiment. She broods over the fact that her husband is dead, and happiness and peace will come to her.

What was the gain by such a deed? Nothing but sadness and the dead man could not be with him. He had to leave him.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

The Making of the Woodpecker Home

By Thornton W. Burgess

The greatest joy is found in work.
So be it you are not a shirk.

—Drummer the Woodpecker.

If ever there were two happy persons in all the Great World those two were Drummer the Woodpecker and Mrs. Drummer as they worked on their new home. You know there is nothing that makes for greater happiness than the building of a home when love directs the work. Now while other birds may work hard when building their nests, their work is easy compared with that of the Woodpeckers, for the latter must hammer and cut out chip by chip the home that is to be theirs.

Back and forth, back and forth, back and forth their heads flew as they hammered their stout bills into that tree. Of course, only one could work at a time. It would have made your neck ache just to watch them. Almost as soon as the entrance had been made, they began to hant down, and after awhile they had a little hollow. Then they made that hollow deeper and deeper, and deeper and deeper. The deeper it grew the more they had to work, for all those tiny chips had to be taken up and thrown out of the doorway.

Of course, they didn't work every minute. They had to go look for food. This was a relief, for it rested their necks. "It is going to be the finest home we have ever had," declared Drummer.

"I hope so," replied Mrs. Drummer.

"Don't you think it is most deep enough?" asked Drummer.

"Enough?" asked Drummer, who, to tell the truth, was beginning to get a little weary of so much work.

"No, my dear," replied Mrs. Drummer, as she came out for a few moments' rest.

Drummer sighed. "Just as you say," said he. "You know best. It sometimes seems to me as if we might just as well have used one of our old homes."

Mrs. Drummer tossed her head. "The idea!" she exclaimed. "The idea of using an old home! Looking at the new home, I can see why you are so tired."

"You are getting lazy, I do believe you are!"

"Now there is nothing that Drummer the Woodpecker despises more than laziness. There isn't a day further on him. He didn't say a word, but promptly went to work. And the way these chips came out of that doorway was proof that he wasn't lazy."

At last Mrs. Drummer decided that the hollow they had cut was deep enough. She smoothed the wall, and then poked her head out long enough to say, "I think, my dear, that I am about ready to make a bed for those eggs I hope we will have soon."

Now Mrs. Drummer does not make a nest of straw and feathers and other soft things, as so many birds do. She uses for her bed just one, very fine, chips and shavings of wood. They make a very comfortable and soft bed. Of course, all the chips had been thrown out. This had been necessary to get them out of the way while they were making that hollow deeper. Where do you think she got the chips for that bed? From the roof. Yes, sir; from the roof!

You know that hollow had been started down from the entrance. Now she went to work to carve that hollow out, and instead of throwing the chips out, she just dropped them to the bottom. So by the time she had made the hollow high enough to suit her, there was a nice bed of chips at the bottom.

"There," said she as she dropped the last chip, "our home is finished!" Drummer flew over to that favorite dead limb and once more he cut a tat-tat-tat out of it. He was drumming for joy.

FOR A' THAT

THEY say the season still is young.
But wait a while and a' that.
For we will finish up among
The leading teams and a' that.
For a' that, and a' that,
We'll get 'em yet and a' that.
But won in April, May or June
A game's a game for a' that.

They say we haven't hit our stride.
But watch our smoke and a' that;
We simply cannot be denied.
We've got the class and a' that.
For a' that and a' that,
We're not in shape and a' that.
But in the spring or in the fall,
A game's a game for a' that.

Our pitchers' arms are on the blink
They need the sun and a' that.
But in a week or so we think,
They'll be in shape and a' that.
For a' that and a' that,
Their alibis and a' that,
No matter when a game is lost,
It's gone for good and a' that.

SPILLED MILK.

Take the Browns, for instance. If they had known that they were going to lose the pennant by one game they would have made extra efforts to win two more games in the spring.

A REDUCTION FOR CASH.

A NY Scot will tell you that, while as a race the Scotch are thrifty, it is in Aberdeen that thrift is an exact science.

And it was in Aberdeen, so the story runs, that an especially frugal citizen entered an apothecary's shop, or, as we would say in America, a drug store. He told the proprietor that he wished to purchase three ounces worth of morphine.

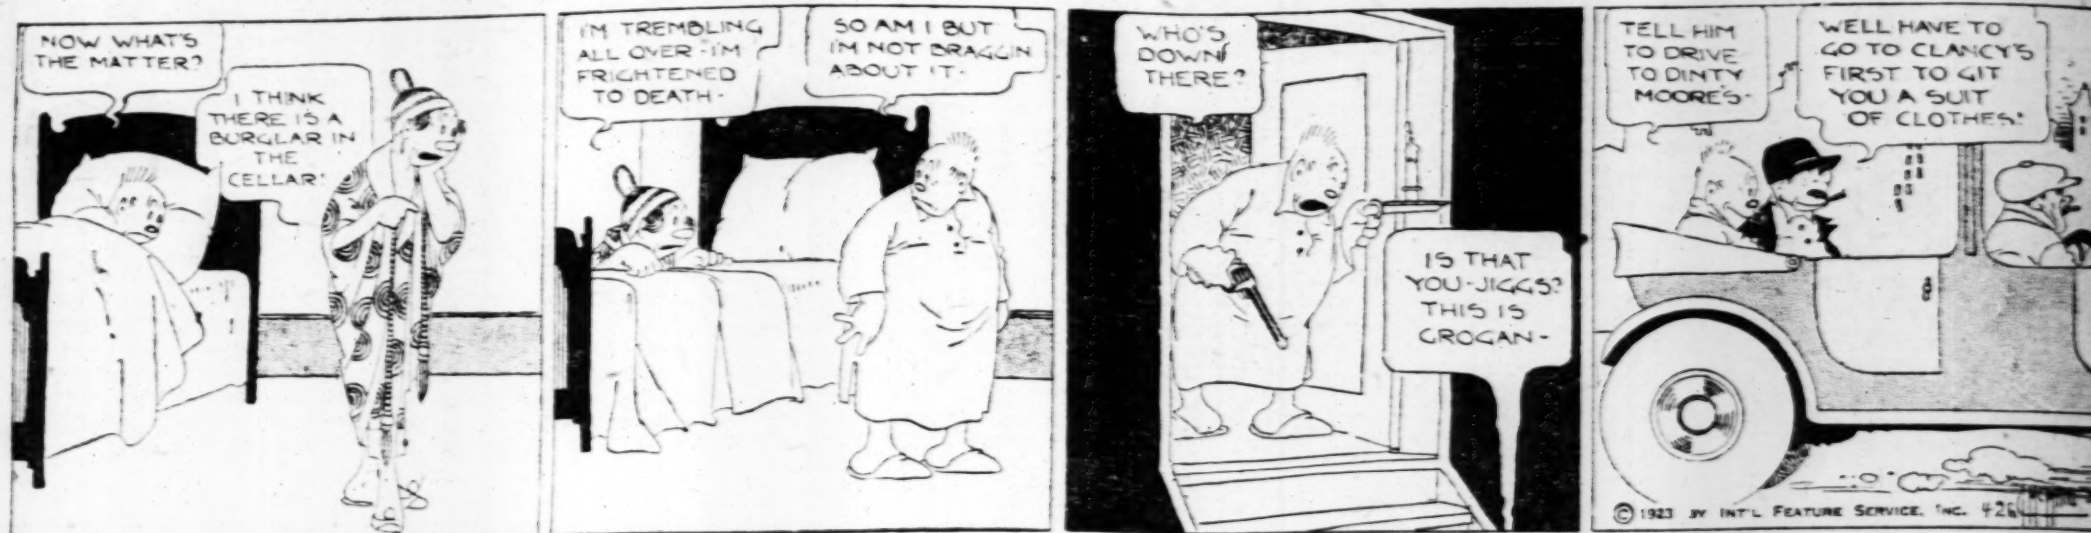

The chemist pondered over a request so unusual. Customarily he sold the drug only to a physician's prescription; but this customer was known to him as reputable and responsible. Nevertheless, he must make sure the purpose was proper.

"Thirpence worth of morphine, eh?" he said. "What would ye be wantin' it for?"

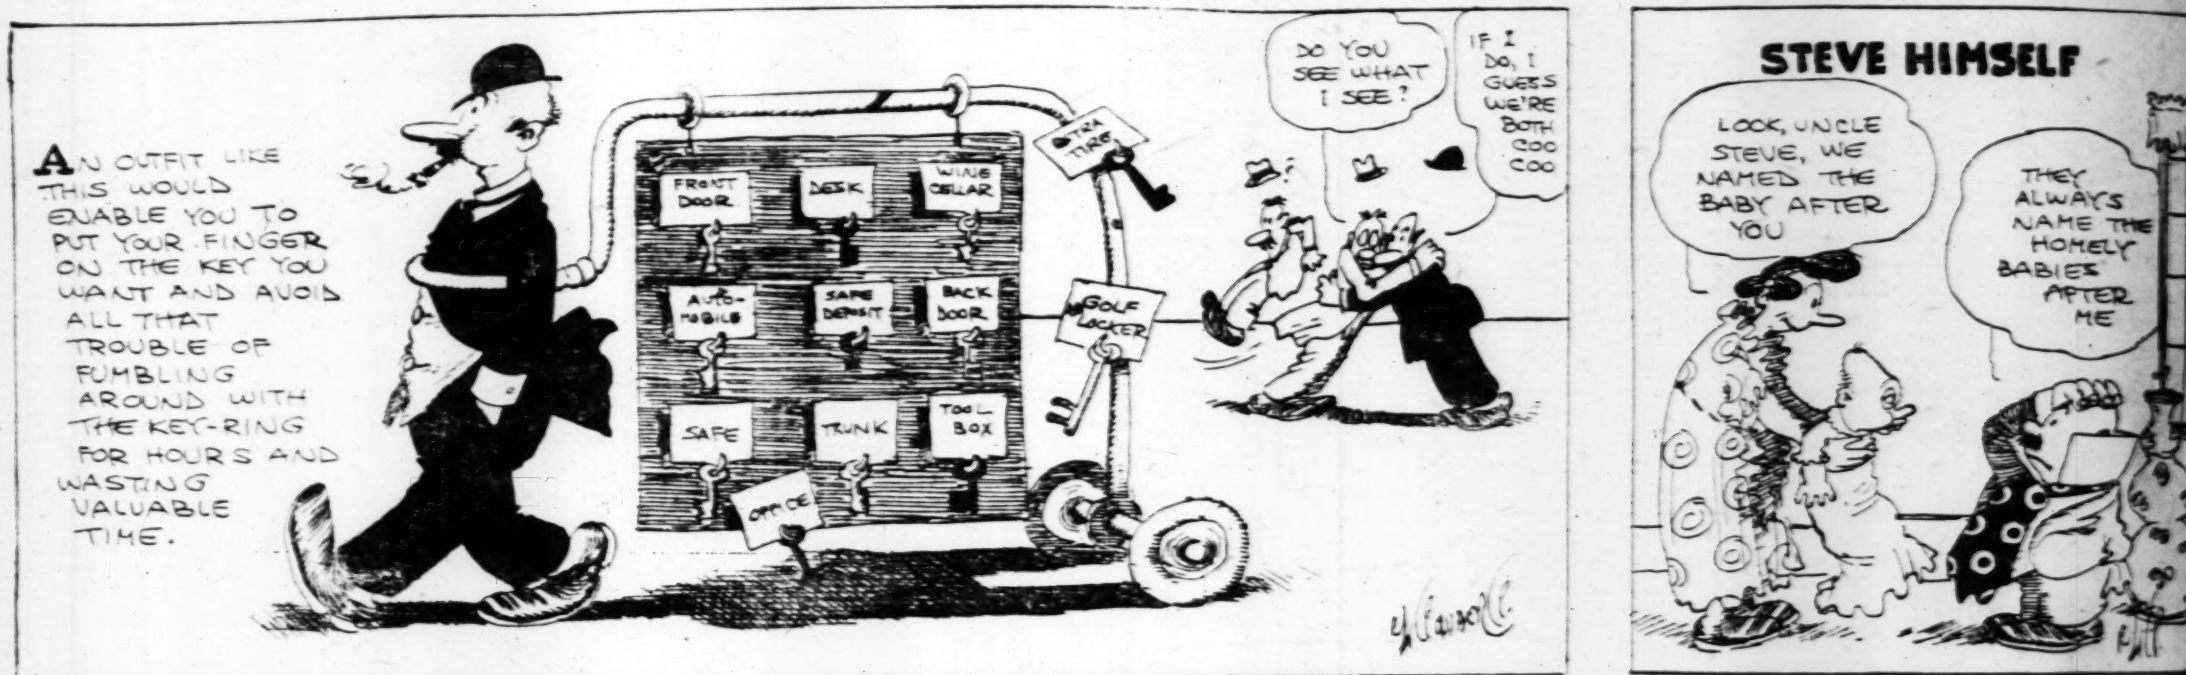

The native thought a moment.
"Tuppence," he said.

WORKHOUSE GUARD STOPS 18 PRISONERS' DASH TO GATE

He Wounds Six Men With Buckshot and Routs Dozen Others When They Advance on Him With Iron Bars and Clubs, One Pointing an Imitation Revolver.

LEADER GOT WITHIN FOUR FEET OF HIM

Men Have Been Serving One-Year Terms for Minor Offenses, Although Each Had Been Charged Originally With Felony.

Eighteen prisoners, trying to escape at 1:30 a. m. today from the Workhouse, were overcome by a single guard who wounded six of them in the legs. The remaining dozen ran to cover and gladly submitted to capture. Each of the prisoners has been serving a one-year term for minor offenses, although they had been charged originally with felonies.

Fred Glese, 50, of 2272 South Jefferson avenue, was the lone guard, who, in the face of overwhelming odds—the prisoners were armed with iron bars and clubs, and one of them flourished an imitation pistol—stood his ground and drove the 15 men back as they rushed upon him. His defense was so effective that he was not even slightly injured.

Guard's Story of Attack.

Gleese was on duty at the Meramec street gate, which is at the north end of the Workhouse grounds, when the prisoners lowered themselves from a sawed window on the east side of the men's cell building, about 150 feet southeast of the Meramec gate, and rushed upon him. His own story of how he frustrated the break was related to a Post-Dispatch reporter as follows:

"I was walking up and down in front of the guardhouse, a few feet from the gate, when I saw the escaping prisoners running toward me. I had barely time to step into the house and grab my repeating shotgun, when the leader, Jack Murray, approached to within four feet of the guardhouse door and pointed what appeared to be a revolver at

"It was no time for me to parley. They could have knocked my brains out. I said, 'You damn fools,' and opened fire on them. I could have aimed at their heads, but instead I shot at their legs. My gun was loaded with buckshot—five shells. I discharged the shell a fat a the automatic trigger would work and the buckshot would

"They Scramped Like Rabbits."
"Murray was the first to fall. The others doubled in their tracks and scrambled back toward the cell building like rabbits." Two or three others fell as they ran. Murray's pistol was about two feet from him on the ground when I poked it aside with my shotgun. It was not until later after the other prisoners had been rounded up, that I discovered the pistol was made of wood. It was a might good imitation.

The other prisoners dropped their clubs as they ran. My shots were heard by the guards at the Broadway gate and on the east wall. They ran to my assistance. The 12 prisoners who were not wounded sought refuge behind a stack of tools and supply boxes on the quadrangle south of the cell buildings, and the other guards fired many shots at them, but none was wounded. The 12 men, when the firing ceased, stepped from behind their barricade with their hands behind their

When Glene emptied his shotgun at the fleeing crowd the chief night guard, Charles Krause, who was in the office, 180 feet away, telephoned a riot call to the police. Patrolmen and detectives were sent from three police stations and Police Headquarters, but their presence was not required, as the Workhouse guards had marched the prisoners back to their cells and were maintaining a special guard over them.

Investigation disclosed that someone outside the cell building had aided in the attempted escape. An automatic lever, which opens the 23 cells on the two tiers in the cellroom set apart for white male prisoners, had been opened with a duplicate key. The prisoners had been provided with saws with which they cut away two iron bars from a window leading outside. Window sills had been cut from five win-
